Charge Reds Shot Plane Off Siberia

Navy Craft Attacked Over International Waters, U.S. Says

PARIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—The United States today accused Soviet Russia of intercepting and attacking an American naval plane without warning while it was flying over international waters off Siberia.

The plane had been missing and was "presumed lost" since Nov. 6, when it set out on a weather reporting mission. It was under U.N. command in Korea.

The American protest was sent to United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie for submission to the U.N. Security Council. The charge was based on a report from the U.N. field commander in Korea. The note did not ask for action on the report and was believed intended to forestall any Russian initiative on the case.

The note said the route of the plane did not approach closer than 40 miles to Russian territory and that the pilot had been briefed not to approach closer than 20 miles to Soviet terrain under any circumstances.

Russia notified the United States in a note on Nov. 7 that an American plane had violated Russian territory and said Russian planes had fired upon it.

The U. S. Navy confirmed yesterday that a two-engined P2V Neptune patrol plane was missing with three officers and seven enlisted men. The announcement said the plane was missing since Nov. 6 and is "presumed to be lost."

Loss of the twin-engine bomber had been kept secret until yesterday, when it was announced in Washington.

The first hint came when the State Department disclosed Russia had protested to the U.S. on Nov. 7 that a reconnaissance type aircraft had flown over Siberian territory.

Persons familiar with the contents of the note said the Russians charged the incident occurred near Vladivostok, that Russian interceptor planes followed the American aircraft and that it was seen disappearing towards the sea.

Princess Kicks Up Heels In Paris Farewell

Strong Arm Of Scotland Yard Stops Pictures of Margaret

PARIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Princess Margaret, kicking up her black high-heeled shoes in a gay farewell to Paris, danced until 3 a.m. today in two of the French capital's smartest nightclubs.

The vivacious daughter of Britain's King George and Queen Elizabeth started the evening with a dinner at Maxim's, famed restaurant immortalized by Franz Lehar in the "Merry Widow."

Then — accompanied by her aunt the Duchess of Kent, and a group of blue bloods—she led reporters and news photographers a merry chase.

First she stopped at the smart Montparnasse Jazz Club, "Jimmy's," stayed there long enough to have a drink, then headed off for "Monseigneurs" chic night club in the Montmartre section.

Leaving "Jimmy's" she ran through a drizzling rain to her waiting automobile. A photographer who tried to take her picture found the heavy hand of a Scotland Yard man thrust across the lens of his camera.

At "Monseigneurs" two British detectives strode into the club, seized a camera from a French newspaper photographer, hustled him outside and destroyed the films he had taken of the royal party.

CIRCUS PERFORMER SAVED. Marie Peters Cirmu, 22, member of an aerial ballet in the Shrine Circus, happily hugs Ralph Winarski, 38, of Cleveland, the assistant circus rigging superintendent who saved her life when she fell 30 feet during the performance in New Orleans. Both were carried unconscious from the ring, but neither suffered serious injury.

Murder Total Of GIs Now 8,000

PARIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—The possible total of American prisoners slain by Communists in Korea has been raised to 8,000 in a newly disclosed report from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme Allied commander in the Far East, to the United Nations security council.

That is 2,000 more than previously indicated.

The disclosure, made in one of the U.N. commander's regular semi-monthly reports, was submitted to the U. N. by the U. S. delegation along with two other reports on Nov. 12. It covers the period from Aug. 16 to Aug. 31.

Ridgway's statement, declaring that as of July 20, 1951, "approximately 8,000 United States military personnel have been reported killed as war crimes victims," apparently was delivered 2 days before Col. James M. Hanley said the Reds had killed about 5,500 American and 290 other Allied prisoners. Col. Hanley is chief of the 8th Army's war crimes investigation section.

Exact Evidence

The report, as disclosed in Washington last night, was described as saying exact evidence obtained through July 20 numbered some 400 killings. The 8,000 total, was described as unconfirmed reports from various sources and in various forms.

Here is what the Ridgway report said about the atrocities:

"Documentation and investigation of reported war crimes incidents are continuing. As of July 20, 1951, approximately 8,000 United States military personnel have been reported killed as war crimes victims. Of this number, approximately 7,000 were reported killed by the North Koreans and the remainder by the Chinese Communists.

"Approximately 15,000 South Koreans, of whom 14,000 were civilians, have been reported killed in other incidents. This figure does not include deaths reported in Seoul, Taejon and other places occupied by enemy forces. Of the South Korean deaths, approximately 200 have been reported killed by the Chinese Communists and the remainder by the North Koreans.

"As of July 31, 1951, a total of 400 active cases were on file with the United Nations command and 126 suspects were in custody. Documentation and investigation of some cases progressed to a point where these cases are ready for trial in the event such is directed."

Six days after Col. Hanley gave his figures to war correspondents in Korea, General Ridgway responded with figures to urgent Pentagon requests for confirmation and clarification.

He said on Nov. 20 the total might be as high as 6,000, of which 365 were confirmed atrocity killings, 294 of them identified.

Last of Three Lima Escapees Captured

LIMA, Nov. 24—(AP)—Robert C. Andross, 26, one of three escapees from Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, was captured early today, the state highway patrol said.

Andross was picked up by the patrol just east of the Lima city limits at 1:30 a.m., after patrolmen had been notified a man answering his description was trying to hitch-hike a ride. Officers said the man spent yesterday wandering around the Lima area.

The other two men—Michael Chepak, 31, and John Auld, 30—already have been apprehended.

Chepak last night walked into a service station at Cairo, four miles north of Lima, and said he wanted to return to the hospital. He was serving a term for burglary in Youngstown.

Auld was caught three hours after the escape Thursday night. He was found sitting in a parked car near the hospital with an injured ankle.

Andross was serving time for a Savings and Loan Association holdup in Cleveland.

Money and Radio Taken in Breakin At Marion Home

Mrs. Grace Sidenstricker of 800 N. State St. reported to police today that her home was broken into last night and $13.10 in cash from two purses and a portable radio were taken.

The theft was reported at 6:14 a.m. today, police said. Entry was gained through an unlocked living room window on the south side of the house.

Police Chief Tom Coon said he believes the theft to be the work of juveniles.

Represent 10 Different Churches

Ohio Christian Youth Rally Held in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Protestant youth from all over Ohio prepared again today to rededicate themselves to the principles of Christian living at the Ohio Christian Youth Rally.

Some 3,400 youths, averaging 15 years of age, opened the three-day meeting last night in Memorial Hall. They sang hymns vigorously and enthusiastically applauded addresses by church leaders and Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The youths come from churches of 10 denominations. They are to be the recruiting force in a drive to "enlist for life 80,000 Ohio youths to serve God in every moment of our lives, to treat all men as brothers, to work toward the day when suffering and strife will be replaced with cooperation and love and when peace shall abide in place of war.

The governor told the young people to remember that godlessness was one cause for the fall of the Roman Empire.

"We need boys and girls of your type," the governor said. "We need you by the millions."

Recalling his days as a judge and later as mayor of Cleveland and governor, Lausche said his period of public service had taught him that law enforcement officers are not "generating the moral fiber we need as a nation to survive."

"Rather," he declared, "we need godliness and we need it badly."

Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, executive secretary of the World Council of Churches, pointed to what he termed "the mass man idea of Russia and the religion of Jesus Christ."

"The one thing that can make the free world a complete unity in opposition to the totalitarian forces of the enslaved world," he declared, "is the Christian community of man."

Blast Wrecks Arsenal Of Danish Navy

18 Killed, Scores Hurt in Explosion Of Heavy Mines

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 24—(AP)—Exploding half-ton mines last night blasted the Danish Navy's arsenal here into a charred tangle death and wreckage.

At least 18 firemen and Navy enlisted men were killed. Others possibly were blown into the harbor or still may be lying under the tangle of concrete and metal debris. Seventy-nine others were injured.

Unofficial estimates put the damage somewhere between 75,000,000 and 100,000,000, kroner (about $1,100,000 to $1,400,000).

The violent chain reaction of fire and explosion, which destroyed five buildings and heavily damaged other Navy installations, shattered windows throughout Copenhagen, set off hundreds of burglar alarms and knocked people out of their beds as far away as Sweden, 30 miles across the straits.

Fire Touches Off Blast

Fire in a gasoline tank behind the heavy concrete mine arsenal touched off seven of 10 mines which an authoritative naval source said had just arrived from the United States. The blast made a crater about 10 yards deep and 30 yards wide and completely disintegrated the workshop where the mine had been taken for inspection.

Firemen who first were called to battle the gasoline fire were caught by the blast and only one of them was able to tell what happened. The others were either dead or in the hospital.

The resulting fires were brought under control two hours after the blast and the grim work of searching for bodies began.

The roof over the dormitories of the Danish marines collapsed, causing panic among the 1,100 men who were asleep when the mines went off. The Navy's new officers' school also was heavily damaged.

Sabotage Suspected

Speculation on the possibility of sabotage was aroused when Police Commissioner J. Odmar imposed a complete blackout of information on investigation of the disaster. Military court investigations also opened this morning in secrecy after Defense Minister Harald Petersen had completed a tour of the roped-off yard.

It was the country's worst peacetime disaster. But it brought to mind a similar disaster in 1944, when scores of Danes and Germans were killed in the explosion of a German munitions ship at Aarhus, Denmark's second biggest city.

Want West's Program Rewritten

Amendments Asked Would Turn Plan Into Russian Proposal

PARIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky demanded today that the Western Powers rewrite their disarmament plan almost completely to make it acceptable to Russia.

Spokesmen for Britain and the United States immediately expressed disappointment and discouragement with Vishinsky's long awaited reply to the arms reduction plan submitted by the Western Big Three. Some said, however, that they thought Vishinsky had left the door open for negotiation.

The Soviet demands for revision of the Western plan were incorporated in a series of 12 amendments submitted to the 60-member United Nations Assembly political committee. The amendments, to all practical purposes, would transform the Western plan into the one the Russians submitted two weeks ago.

Jessup Disappointed

Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, United States delegate who is handling the disarmament debate in the political committee now, made this comment:

"We are very much disappointed. Mr. Vishinsky still seems to prefer denunciation to negotiation. Secretary Acheson's speech made it clear that we desire to forsake invective and go to work. We will proceed in the hope that progress toward a genuine system of disarmament is still possible."

A leading Scandinavian delegate said he found Vishinsky's address "less belligerent than previous ones." He said he thought "the soft tones at the end of the speech might be an opening for negotiations."

"The Americans can now come with detailed questions to the Russians on what they mean."

Other Developments

Other developments at the U.N. today:

1. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U.N. commander in Korea, submitted to the Security Council a report boosting to 8,000 the possible number of American prisoners slain by Communist forces. The previous figure was 2,000 less.

2. The United States accused Soviet Russia of intercepting and firing on an American naval plane over international waters off Siberia. The plane has been missing, "presumed lost," with 10 men aboard since Nov. 6.

3. Vishinsky, in his talk to the political committee, charged that he had been offered a bargain—a seat for White Russia on the Security Council in return for concessions to the West on disarmament—but refused. White Russia is the Soviet bloc candidate for the seat now held by Yugoslavia. The Philippines and Greece are other candidates for the seat, with Greece leading now.

The Soviet foreign minister submitted his amendments to the 60-member U.N. political committee at the end of a one-hour and 46-minute speech.

Vishinsky's Program

Vishinsky's amendments called for immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb under international control; an immediate one-third reduction of arms by the U.S., Britain, France, Russia and China; a control committee on atomic energy and conventional armaments under the authority of the Security Council, where Russia has a veto, and deletion of all reference to a step-by-step census of arms.

The West contends that a foolproof disclosure of arms by stages and verification of figures submitted by various countries are the keystones of its plan.

The expected Soviet rejection

Mercury Dips Below Zero In Midwest

By The Associated Press

The coldest weather of the season hit the Midwest today.

Temperatures tumbled to far below zero in parts of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. It was -16 at Jamestown, N. D., -11 in Alexandria, Minn., and -6 in Grantsburg.

The wintry blasts extended over the Northern Plains states, the Ohio valley and eastward to the lower Great Lakes region. The cold air moved eastward but was expected to moderate before reaching the Atlantic seaboard. Not much warming was in prospect for the North Central region over the week-end. Snow flurries fell from the Great Lakes region and the West Central Rockies.

Yule Parade Crowd Placed At Over 5,000

An estimated crowd of more than 5,000 persons lined streets in the Marion downtown business section Friday for the annual Christmas parade.

The estimate was made by Police Chief Tom Coon. He said the pedestrians and automobiles caused a traffic jam at the close of festivities and members of the police department were kept busy for more than an hour unsnarling it.

During the parade, composed of floats sponsored by various Marion County churches, musical organizations and choral groups, a reception was held at the courthouse to welcome Santa Claus to the city.

Carl H. Knirk, president of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, welcomed Santa on behalf of the Chamber and Police Chief Coon extended greetings on behalf of Mayor Robinson, who was unable to attend. Mr. Knirk then introduced Charles Osterholt, chairman of the retail division of the Chamber, sponsors of the parade, and Rev. R. W. Faulkner, pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church. Rev. Faulkner directed church participation in the parade.

Hopes Fade For Early Buffer Zone Approval

Negotiators Agree On Only Half Of 145-Mile Line

MUNSAN, KOREA, Nov 24—(AP)—Hopes faded today for final approval of the Korean buffer zone issue this week end as staff officers reported agreement on only half of the 145-mile cease-fire line.

The officers poured over maps for five hours and 10 minutes Saturday, comparing United Nations and Communist versions of where the line of battle contact is located. They will meet for the third time in Panmunjom Sunday at 10 a.m. (8 p.m. EST Saturday).

The official U.N. command communique said only that they agreed on approximately one-half of the line. It did not designate sectors still in dispute.

Lt. Col. Howard Levie, official U.N. command spokesman, said it still was too early to say the staff officers have hit a snag. He added that Allied officers hope to settle the line tomorrow but "couldn't make any guarantees."

"Progress was being made right up to 4:30 this afternoon when the meeting ended," Levie said Saturday night. "Our staff officers expect to go back tomorrow and make considerable progress right from the beginning because both sides will have had an opportunity to get the latest information from the front lines."

Levie acknowledged that there

Self-Wounded Dope Addicts Back in Jail

The two dope addicts who slashed themselves in the cell block at the Marion County jail Friday were back in the jail this morning after treatment at City Hospital.

William Archie Harvin, 41, of Leesburg, Fla., and Hoyt Robert Reynolds, 38, of Montgomery, Ala, were taken to the hospital after cutting themselves shortly before noon Friday. Sheriff LeRoy Retterer said he believed they cut themselves in an effort to return to the hospital where they had been receiving slight amounts of narcotics. Hospital attaches bore him out when they found the cuts to be of a minor nature.

Harvin slashed his throat while Reynolds cut his arm just above the wrist. Both were returned to the jail after treatment.

Sheriff Retterer said hospital attaches had allowed the men a small amount of narcotics daily. These shots are administered twice daily at the jail to prevent

Will Become Largest On System

Three Additions To Present Installation Being Constructed

Work has been started in Marion by the Erie Railroad on a huge expansion project which will make the diesel-electric locomotive shops into the largest such facility on the entire system, H. I. Phelps, master mechanic, announced today.

The expansion program includes the construction of three additions to the present diesel locomotive shop. These additions are now listed as the north extension, west extension and office building.

Mr. Phelps said that when the work is completed late next year, the diesel locomotive service and repair center at Marion will be the largest on the Erie Railroad devoted exclusively to this work. He explained that while the Erie's shops in Hornell, N.Y., will have a greater area of floor space in square feet, other work besides diesel service and repairs is performed there, such as crane repairs and material production operations.

Largest Addition

The largest addition to the Marion facilities is the north extension which will house the diesel service shop. The building, now under construction, will have a ground floor area measuring 93 by 242 feet. It will be one story high.

According to present plans, operations known as "mileage inspection" on diesels will be performed in the building. In order to facilitate the work, two long pits will run the length of the structure where bottom and top side inspection and maintenance can be done conveniently by employes.

Since the north extension is immediately adjacent to the present diesel shop, the existing drop pit for the removal and installation of wheels and trucks from the locomotive units will be extended into the new building.

Office Building

The new office building will be a two-story structure covering an area of 36 feet by 110 feet, Mr. Phelps said. According to the plans, the first floor will have record and meeting rooms, offices of general foremen, electricians and crew registry room.

On the second floor, the layout calls for location of the general offices, record room, and offices of the storekeeper, road foremen of engines, and other supervisors of diesel locomotive and shop operations.

In the basement of the office building, there will be locker rooms, shower and wash rooms and other facilities for the comfort of the diesel shop employes, Mr. Phelps explained.

Third Addition

The third addition, west extension, will be a continuation of the present diesel locomotive repair shop. It will add an area available for repair operations of 80 feet by 104 feet, bringing the entire repair shop to 326 feet in length.

Mr. Phelps said every effort is being made to equip the new work areas with the most modern type of machinery, equipment, lighting and heating which are available at the present time for the comfort and efficiency of employes at this location. The new buildings will be constructed of brick and steel. The work is being performed by Brown Construction Co. of Cleveland.

In addition to the buildings, it will be necessary to relocate a number of tracks, fuel and sanding equipment, locomotive washing and cleaning machinery in the vicinity of the diesel shops, it was pointed out.

Most Diesels

Mr. Phelps said the Marion shops will have the largest number of diesel-electric locomotive units on its roster as compared with other servicing centers maintained by the Erie Railroad. At present, the Erie has 399 diesel units but this number will be increased to 427 within a few months when those on order are delivered.

He explained that operations on the Erie's western district are virtually 100 per cent dieselized now. During the last seven years, the company has invested more than 60 million dollars in diesel

Plucky Columbus Girl Born Armless Cheered by Letters

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—The world has never looked dull for pretty, 11-year-old Joann McCarthy, who was born without arms.

But it seems especially bright these days because the plucky youngster, who writes with her toes, has hundreds of new friends she has never met.

Letters are pouring in from all over the country to the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville McCarthy of Columbus.

Many come from girls her own age. They are amazed at the things she can do with her feet and they want to become pen pals.

The Associated Press sent Joann's story across the country. It told how she can do almost anything with her toes — even thread a needle.

Some of her "fans" merely wish her luck. Others send small amounts of money. All are solicitous of the little girl who feels she needs no help.

A doctor in north Hollywood, Calif., told the McCartys he has information on how armless children can learn to play musical instruments. He'll send it to them.

A Memphis, Tenn., businessman says he knows a manufacturer of artificial limbs who will give Joann arms free. McCarty, a truck driver, is seriously considering that offer.

An elderly Indiana couple sent a card of congratulations and wrote on it:

"God bless you and harm, little darling."

Other letters still are coming in from Arizona, Kansas, Maryland, Iowa, Missouri, Florida, Illinois—from big towns and little towns. JoAnn pores over them. She says:

"It will take me a long time, but I'm going to answer all of them."

The first one she'll reply to is from little 8-year-old Jo Beth Johnson of Live Oak, Fla. that letter reads:

"I am Jo Beth. Mama has been writing to you about me, so I am adding a few lines. I like school. Hope you do, too. Write to me if you have time. I write with my toes, too. Love, Jo Beth."

Jo Beth is armless, too.

Blast Open River Dikes In Italy

ROVIGO, ITALY, Nov. 24—(AP)—Engineers set off nearly two tons of dynamite this morning to blast open Po river dikes and release torrents of flood waters toward the Adriatic sea.

The action was taken to relieve flood pressures on larger towns along the raging river's banks. Church bells tolled a warning to any persons remaining in the area just before the blast was set off.

The Po has been cutting a path of devestation across north Italy for 16 days now. At least 200,000 persons have been driven from their homes, hundreds of millions of dollars in damage have been counted and unofficial figures place the number of dead at more than 150.

Barkley Fires Shell at Reds In Korea

CENTRAL FRONT, KOREA, Nov. 24—(AP)—Vice President Alben Barkley celebrated his 74th birthday today by firing an autographed artillery shell at the Chinese Reds.

He said he was coming through his long trip to Korea "in good shape," then added, "it's not too tough."

When he landed at the forward airstrip of the U.S. 25th Division, the division band broke into "happy birthday to you."

"I expect to live to 103, especially after this exhilarating trip to Korea," he said with a broad grin.

Barkley reviewed an honor guard and shook hands with the 25th Division's commander, Maj. Gen. Ira P. Swift.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme Allied commander, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army chief, accompanied Barkley on a swing along the front in an aerial caravan of light planes.

Living Cost At All Time High

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—Mounting food prices have sent living costs to a record high.

The consumers price index compiled by the government's Bureau of Labor Statistics edged to 187.4 per cent of the 1935-39 base. This figure for Oct. 15 was .4 per cent above the Sept. 15 record and 10.1 per cent over pre-Korean price levels.

The Bureau said food price hikes, along with a 1.5 per cent boost in rents, were main reasons for the increase. The index measures retail prices paid by average city families.

Ask Candidates To Tell Aims

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—Pressure built up today behind potential Republican presidential aspirants to bring their candidacy out into the open.

Friends were reported urging Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and now president of the University of Pennsylvania, to announce his candidacy before Jan. 1.

Senator Morse (R-Ore) said if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is going to be a candidate for the Republican nomination he should say so immediately.

Politicians generally credited the early entry of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio into the Republican race with the early pressure being brought to bear on other potential candidates. Thus far only Gov. Earl Warren of California, the 1948 vice presidential nominee, officially had entered the list against Taft.

Find More Sources Of Parrot Fever

Scientists Trace Virus to Other Species of Birds

BERKELEY, Calif. — (UP) — The known sources of infection for "parrot fever" have been greatly expanded according to Dr. Karl F. Meyer of the University of California medical center.

In a review of psittacosis in the United States since 1945, Meyer said routine tests at the Hooper foundation of the university have disclosed infectious agents not only in parakeets, parrots, pigeons and doves—birds long known to carry the disease.

They also have recovered psittacosis agents from canaries, a variety of finches, ducks, Linnet, chickens, pheasant, ricebirds and sea gulls.

The scientist said there were 260 reported cases of the disease in the United States between 1945 and July, 1950, with seven deaths. The sources of infection were several of the named birds.

A new feature of psittacosis research is a report by Meyer of the first definite demonstration that the carrier state of the disease can occur in man.

The carrier state occurs when an individual who has recovered from the disease and is apparently in good health, has the infectious agent in his body.

Meyer reported a single case of a biochemist who got the disease in 1938. An analysis consistently has shown the infectious agent to be present as late as 1950, and to be infectious for mice. The agent continues to be present even after penicillin treatment.

However, a careful check of the man's associates, including his wife, indicates that he has not infected humans. That would indicate the agent is not infectious for man. The scientist said, however, that the possibility of the human carrier state being infectious for man must be considered as a possibility.

Dope Addicts

suffering on the part of the addicts. Without the shots, the sheriff said the men could become violent and inflict more serious wounds that those of yesterday.

The amounts allotted the men at the hospital included less than one-eighth grain of narcotics. The narcotics, in the form of pills, are diluted at the jail before injection. The two men are allowed to inject the fluid into their veins twice daily, Sheriff Retterer said.

The cuts Friday were inflicted by the men with a piece of a double-edged razor blade. One of the prisoners told the sheriff they always carried the blade and on some occasions used it to cut their skins to allow an injection.

Since their return to the jail, the prisoners have been refused razor blades in their cells without supervision of deputies. Their belts and all other articles which could be used to inflict wounds on themselves also have been removed, the sheriff said.

The two men were arrested last Saturday when they attempted to have a prescription, calling for the use of narcotics, filled at a drug store. They were arraigned in Municipal Court Tuesday and after pleading guilty were bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bonds.

Disarmament

of the Western plan was somewhat softened by the offer of amendments. At least it meant that the Western proposals would be used as a basis for discussion.

It was recalled, however, that Vishinsky used the same technique last year in presenting amendments to an American plan for strengthening the U.N. General Assembly. The amendments were called an attempt to change the entire character of the plan and were rejected.

Urges Acceptance

Vishinsky urged acceptance of the Russian amendments, which he said would open the way to "agreement on such important questions as reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons, with the establishment of strict international control over implementation of prohibition of atomic weapons and reduction of armament."

The fundamental difference between the Western disarmament plan and the one Russia recently handed to the general assembly as an answer, said Vishinsky, is that the Western plan does not call for immediate prohibition of atomic weapons.

Korea

still were "certain areas of major difference" when Saturday's meeting adjourned.

He said a "major" difference would involve five miles of territory or a strategic point such as a hill.

There had been some expectation that the staff officers could finish mapping the cease-fire line Saturday.

Allies Victorious In Air, On Land

SEOUL, KOREA, Nov. 24—(AP)—Allied jet pilots and infantrymen scored sharp victories over the Reds today as sporadic fighting flared in Korea.

In a renewal of the air war, 18 U.S. F-86 Sabre jets clashed with about 35 Russian-made MIG-15 jets south of the Yalu River and damaged three. Fifth Air Force said all United Nations warplanes returned safely to base.

On the ground, Allied doughboys fought up the craggy slopes of "Little Gibraltar" and recaptured a hill lost to a regiment of Chinese Reds 14 hours before. The battle was west of Yonchon on the western front.

Fifth Air Force said the score for the week ended Friday (Korean time) was 18 MIGs destroyed or damaged and five Allied warplanes shot down.

INTEREST IN SOILS SHOWN

MARYSVILLE — Interest in soils problems by Union County farmers was shown this week when the Marysville High School recreation room was filled for a lecture by John Slipher of Ohio State University on the result of soil testing experiments in the county.

Britain's Two Top Auto Manufacturers Merge

LONDON, Nov. 24 — (AP) — Britain's top two automobile manufacturers—Austin and Morris—announced Friday they would merge forces under a single company to fight for a bigger share of the world's markets.

The merger would give the new organization combined assets of £66 million ($184.8 million) and would leave it the fourth largest auto manufacturer in the world, outstripped only by America's big three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

CRUISER BLOWS UP

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24—(AP)—An unoccupied 50-foot cabin cruiser blew up in its boathouse Friday, and the flames that followed wrecked two houses and damaged two others. Firemen estimated damage at more than $100,000. No one was hurt. The cause of the explosion was not determined.

HOME SHOW PLANNED

Plans for the annual Home Show sponsored by the Marion Exchange Club were discussed Friday when the club held its weekly luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding. The 1952 show is scheduled for March 23 to 26 at the Memorial Coliseum.

Fire Escape Pays Off For Woman of 90

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. (U.P.)—A homemade fire escape ladder, erected on the side of a house 28 years ago, has paid off finally.

Mrs. Minnie H. Mattoni, 90-year-old widow, climbed down the ladder after she was trapped by fire in her second-floor apartment.

"My neighbors always kidded me about that ladder," Mrs. Mattoni said. "They often asked me to give them a demonstration. If they had been around they would have seen a real good one."

She said her landlord had the ladder set up in 1923 at her request.

REVIVAL PLANNED

Revival services will open at Liberty Methodist Church in Kirkpatrick Sunday night with The Rev. Norman R. Somerville of Galion preaching. He will be the evangelist for the services each night at 8, except Saturday, through Dec. 2, Rev. Ira D. Rife, pastor, announced.

CHORUS TO REHEARSE

Marion Civic Chorus rehearsals are nearing final stage in preparation for the annual presentation of "The Messiah" Sunday night, Dec. 2. A practice Sunday will be at 3 at Epworth Methodist Church. Prof. Rexford Keller of Delaware will direct the chorus again this year in the presentation, and there will be guest soloists and instrumental ensemble group. The performance here each year the first Sunday in December draws large audiences from throughout the area.

ROLLING OUT THE BARRELS. Contestants in a Paris barrel race start their test in the Place Clichy. Appropriately race was won by Henri Gourdin (front), barrel maker.

ALL HANDS PITCH IN TO FREE BOGGED-DOWN JEEP. New military wonders may come and go, but the foot soldier is still basically the key figure in any army as this photo clearly illustrates. These U. S. infantrymen, using just their muscles, push mightily to free a jeep and trailer which bogged down in the heavy mud in Korea.

A Foreign Policy For Americans

By Senator Robert A. Taft

CHAPTER 9

The Russian Menace. How Do We Meet It in Europe?

(PART 2)

WHEN WE COME to the third and fourth proposals to assist Europe, (shall we go to the European countries' defense if they are attacked by Russia or anyone else? and shall we commit American troops in time of peace to an international army to be stationed in Europe?) however, we enter a much more controversial field, because under both of these proposals we frankly commit the United States to war in case Russia attacks.

SENATOR TAFT

This we have not done anywhere else in the world, except as to the island nations of Japan, the Philippine Republic, Australia and New Zealand. The Atlantic Pact definitely commits us to go to the defense of any one of the 11 nations if Russia or anyone else attacks those nations.

There are various reasons why this should be done. We became involved in Europe by fighting World War II, so that we could not remove ourselves from the situation even if we wanted to. We are one of the occupying powers in Germany, and no one has yet been able to devise a method by which we can withdraw from that obligation without practically inviting the communization of Germany.

We have an obligation to see that Germany itself does not rearm in such a manner as to become again a threat to the security of Europe and of the world.

Notice to Russia

It seemed to me wise to notify Russia definitely that if they undertook a war (in Europe) they would find themselves at war with the United States. This feature of the Atlantic Pact was, in fact, the extension of the Monroe Doctrine to Europe. The Monroe Doctrine brought peace to the American continent for a hundred years. A notification of this kind to Russia seems to me a very clear deterrent to its beginning a war, because it most necessarily fear the bombing by the United States which would result if they began aggression against members of the pact.

I do not like the obligation written into the pact which binds us for 20 years to come in the defense of any country, no matter by whom it is attacked and even though the aggressor may be another member of the pact; and I do not like the obligation of the pact which requires us to go to the assistance of a nation attacked, without any consultation with other persons, without a decision by a majority of those involved, and without any examination of the reasons for the aggression which may have occurred. Nevertheless, I think the advantage of the notice given to Russia outweighs, at least for the present, those excessive obligations of the pact into which we have entered.

Might Incite Russia

In spite of the fact that I approved the warning given to Russia by the ratification of the Atlantic Pact, I voted against it because I felt it was contrary to the whole theory of the United Nations Charter, which had not been shown to be ineffective, because I felt that it might develop aggressive features more likely to incite Russia to war than to deter it from war, and because I thought that, at least by implication, it committed the United States to the policy of a land war in Europe, when we might find that a third world war could better be fought by other means.

I wish to make it clear that once the United States has entered into an obligation I am in favor of meeting every such obligation.

While this is not an offensive alliance, the line between defense and offense today is indeed a shadowy one. The Maginot Line was the essence of pure defense. Today it is the target of ridicule. Every good defense includes elements of offense. We can not have an adequate armament for defense which can not be converted overnight into a weapon of offense, at least for limited objectives. We talked of defense for some years before entering World War II, while our preparation was also for offense.

The result is that, no matter how defensive an alliance may be, if it carries the obligation to arm it means the building up of competitive offensive armament. This treaty, therefore, means inevitably an armament race, and armament races in the past have led to war

U.N. Can't Enforce Peace

Nevertheless after the Korean and Chinese episodes we have to give up the idea of the enforcement of peace by the United Nations, and I see no choice now except to rely on our armed forces and alliances with those nations willing to fight the advance of communism. But don't let's fool ourselves into regarding a military alliance as a world state based on the ideals of collective security.

I have no means of guessing whether the Russians intend to start a third world war or not, but if they do intend to do so I believe they will begin that war, regardless of anything we do, when they feel that the time is most propitious from their own standpoint.

If they do not have the intention of starting a third world war, then I believe there is only one incitement on our part which might lead them to change their minds and begin such a war. That would be the creation of a condition in which Russia feared the actual invasion of Russia or invasion of some satellite country sufficiently close as to threaten the future invasion of Russia.

However, my fears do not seem to have been borne out up to this time. Either the Russians are very much afraid of starting a third world war, or they see serious weaknesses in their position which can only be remedied in time, or they don't regard the European army in its present condition as likely to be a threat to anyone for some years to come. Their failure to move in Europe, or with Russian armies anywhere, raises the hope that perhaps we have completely overestimated the Russian strength. Unfortunately we cannot take a chance.

Let's Complete Arming

We have no choice now except to complete as rapidly as possible the arming of Western Europe if it desires to be armed. That is the policy decided on in the Atlantic Pact, and I am in favor of carying out this commitment, as worked out by the Council and General Eisenhower under the Pact.

In the beginning of 1951, however, we were suddenly committed to a new project, without any consultation with Congress and without any justification from the terms of the Atlantic Pact. That is the program to build up a great international army on the continent of Europe with a substantial commitment of American land troops.

I think it should be made clear, first, that this was in no way contemplated by the Atlantic Pact and that the United States is in no way obligated to engage in any such project because of the ratification of the Atlantic Pact. The proposal violates the general principles of foreign policy which I have advocated, but I do feel that the special situation of Europe justifies the stationing of a limited number of American troops on the continent of Europe. I believe it should be limited and that no further commitment should be made beyond the six divisions already promised, without a thorough reconsideration of the whole policy and definite further action by Congress itself.

The Senate Acted

Congress could never obtain from General Marshall any definite statement that six divisions were the limit of an American contribution in time of peace, and in view of the past history of the Administration it is reasonable to feel that in another year we will be asked for more divisions to carry out this original plan.

The Senate finally dealt with the situation by approving the general contribution of six divisions to Europe but indicating that the President should return to Congress for authority to commit any larger army to the continent of Europe in time of peace.

I did not think we should force our assistance on any nation which does not really wish to arm itself. I did not think we should insist that the European nations form a great international army, unless they take the initiative and request us to help them in that project. If these nations really do desire to build up their own arms and if it appears that that defense has a reasonable chance of success I believe we should commit some limited number of American divisions to work with them to show that we are not evading the toughest part of the defense program provided by the Atlantic Pact.

Such a program, however, never ought to be a key point in our strictly American military strategy. And the initiative should be theirs and not ours.

I have also viewed the proposed European-army project with concern, because I believe it is likely to grow beyond the capacity of the United States and therefore to threaten its entire economic structure.

General Eisenhower has made progress in persuading the European Prot members that their own safety depends on arming themselves adequately in a united defense against possible Russian attack. Certainly a Western Europe adequately armed and prepared to meet any Russian military threat is a tremendous addition to the security of the United States. I have said that I think it justifies our temporary contribution of some American divisions to stimulate that effort. Our aim should be to make Europe sufficiently strong so that American troops can be withdrawn from the continent of Europe.

Danger Of Land War

I am concerned about the serious danger of committing our greatest efforts to a land war on the continent of Europe against Russia. The program which the Administration is pursuing apparently contemplates that we send, or promise to send, to Europe within a few weeks of the beginning of the war enough American troops to defend the pact countries including Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and Italy. I do not believe we can prepare in time of peace for any such project without straining our economic ability beyond the limit.

We also risk the loss of a war, a loss which in the end might threaten the very security of the United States itself. Neither Napoleon nor Hitler was ever able finally to defeat Russia on land, although each had more men than we are now planning to provide, certainly in comparison to the number of Russians then available.

I somewhat doubt whether the Russians really can deliver an atomic bomb. Nevertheless, we are proposing to spend some three billion dollars building air shelters in this country to protect our people and cities against Russian atom bombs delivered all the way from Russia itself.

If that is a possibility, then surely there is danger that the Russians can destroy all of the ports our Army may be using on the continent. They may be able to prevent the landing of troops and the furnishing of adequate supplies. They might even make a Dunkerque escape impossible. One atom bomb at Hungnam might have destroyed the entire American force which escaped so successfully from there.

One Great Danger

In my opinion we are completely able to defend the United States itself. The one great danger we face is that we may overcommit ourselves in this battle against Russia. Germany lies in ruins today because Hitler thought he could conquer the world when he had no such ability. Italy is a poverty-stricken nation because Mussolini thought he could create an Italian empire.

An unwise and overambitious foreign policy, and particularly the effort to do more than we are able to do, is the one thing which might in the end destroy our armies and prove a real threat to the liberty of the people of the United States.

No one is more determined to resist Communist aggression in the world than I am. I think the Russians present a menace to the liberty of the entire world and to our way of life, a menace greater than we have faced before in our history. That menace is not entirely military. It is a battle of liberty against communism in the minds of men. We cannot afford to destroy at home the very liberty which we must sell to the rest of the world as the basis for progress and happiness.

Ban on TV Football May Be Ended

Through the SPORTSCOPE with A. L. McCLAIN

FOOTBALL TALK. It was a good conversation. The talk was sports, naturally. Someone got to talking about the trick plays employed a couple of decades ago and I said, "I remember a secret weapon we had on our team in '41.

After I had finished telling them the story, someone said, "Why don't you write it up in the Sportscope?"

I shook my head and said no sane reader would believe it.

Someone asked what made me believe sane peopl read the column. Another said, "We don't believe it either, but we listened didn't we. Go ahead."

Very well, here goes.

WILLIE THE EAVESDROPPER. Watching the advent of the forward pass in football more and more each season, I get to thinking about Willie the Eavesdropper."

Willie didn't look much like a gridiron hero. He was short and weighed only 125 pounds. He had too pleasant a smile and genial personality to get mad enough to throw a hard tackle or block at an opponent.

But Willie still rated as the most valuable player on our high school team 10 years ago.

You see, nobody could come within 50 yards of our little Willie when it came to hearing what the opposing quarterback was calling in the huddle.

STILL HAD WILLIE. Let his biggest lineman come down with an injury, or his number one halfback get banged up and unable to play and the coach would say, "We'll get by. After all we still got Willie."

But let the little hear-all follow so much as suffer a hang nail and the coach would go without meals and lose sleep from worrying.

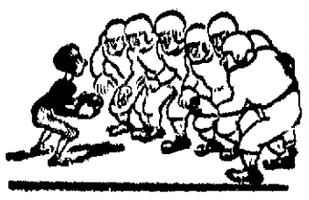
Willie the Eavesdropper was that valuable.

Those were days when the offensive team would come out of a huddle and the defensive team and fans alike would wonder whether it would be a running play or pass.

Willie would crouch down over the ball and listen for all he was worth. So when the opposition lined up he would already have relayed what the play was going to be.

BLOCKED KICKS. They tried 4 quick kicks against us that year All were blocked, naturally.

Well, we went along winning some and losing a few when even Willie's power wasn't enough. Then came the game with Hamtramck, In case you don't know Hamtramck is a city itself right smack in the center of Detroit. It's a Polish settlement and most of the customs of the old country are still carried on.



Hamtramck High's line averaged more than 190 pounds that season and was bigger than the University of Michigan. All the Detroit papers played it up.

We kicked off to them and they wasted no time. On the first play they tried a pass and it went for a touchdown.

Within the time it takes you to mustard up a hotdog the score was 20-0 with the big Polish guys leading.

BETRAYED. The coach called Willie to the bench. He had the look of a man who had been betrayed as he faced the little guy.

It was impossible to tip off the plays the coach learned. "They're all talking in Polish, and I can't understand what they're saying," Willie said.

They licked us 44-7. Look it up if you don't believe me.

So today with the knowledge that the opposing team will or will not pass not much advantage to the defensive 11, it's just as well that Willie the Eavesdropper is no longer in the game.

When I had finished one observer said, "Whatever became of him—become a private detective or something?"

FALLING LEAVES. Nothing that exciting, I told them. Willie works in an automobile plant doing a very unexciting job and his favorite wont is listening to the leaves fall outside his window in autumn. . . .

ARRIVES IN EUROPE. Sgt. Curt Simmons, pitching star for the Philadelphia Phillies, waves from the gangplank of the transport Gen. Butler on his arrival at Bremerhaven, Germany, with units of the 28th Infantry division. That's a baseball cap he's waving. Simmons was called into military service with the Pennsylvania National Guard outfit during the 1950 baseball season.

Restrictions On Telecasts Are Ruled Illegal

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 24—(AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association's one-year controlled football television program ends today—perhaps forever.

Drastic changes are in prospect following an unofficial opinion from the department of justice in Washington that it considered restrictions of telecasts of big time games "illegal."

The latest development in the controversial issue came as a result of a squabble regarding the NCAA's refusal to sanction telecasts of today's big game between Tennessee and Kentucky at Lexington, Ky.

Asked Permission

Kentuck Governor Lawrence W Wetherby wired Attorney General McGrath requesting permission to telecast the game.

Newell A. Clapp, acting chief of the anti-trust division of the department of Justice, called Gov. Wetherby's attention to the anti-trust suit filed against the professional National Football League for similar broadcasting restrictions.

Clapp hinted that similar action would be taken against collegiate groups if the department wins the Philadelphia suit,

The dispute arose when WHAS-TV which planned to televise the Kentucky-Tennessee game cancelled its plans when Kentucky refused to grant permission follow the NCAA's ruling.

Will Abide

Kentucky's board of trustees said it would have to abide with the NCAA because it is a member and because it agreed to the original blackout plan, although the game is a sell-out.

The NCAA established a controlled one-year program last September to test the effects of television on football attendance. The program called for 19 games starting Sept. 29 and ending today. Certain areas were to be blacked out each week.

Louisville's turn to be in the dark arrived today.

Calls Florida Football Note Bad Timing

School Says It Will Compete For Better Athletes

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Most notable example of poor timing that has come to our attention recently was Florida State University's announcement that it would increase the value of its athletic scholarships and compete for the best athletes . . . You have to admire the frankness of the FSU authorities and perhaps agree that to get the best it is necessary to offer more financial inducements . . . But with college athletics coming in for a terrific blasting these days and with the best brains in the business trying to figure out ways to improve the situation, there seem to be only two sensible courses for FSU to follow at present: (a) Don't do it, (b) Shaddup . . . Report from "Mr. Inside" on the U. of Kentucky campus says that a lot of the older football players would have preferred a bowl of eggnog at home during the Christmas holidays to a trip to the Cotton Bowl, but they voted for the trip as a favor to Coach Bear Bryant and to the younger players . . . Mr. I. quotes one lineman on the poll as saying: "We had two choices: go to the Cotton Bowl or go to the Cotton Bowl."

A FRUITLESS TRIPPI. Dan Mainer, freshman end at the U. of North Carolina got his first taste of big time football when his father, a telegraph manager, used to let him hang around the press box . . . During an Alabama-Georgia game, when Harry Gilmer and Charley Trippi were staging a duel, Dan was given a telegram to deliver to the governor of Georgia on the far side of the field . . . Dan admits that he was so interested in watching the game that it took him 45 minutes to reach the other side . . . and just then Trippi broke loose and Mainer forgot all about his errand and made the long jaunt back to the press box with the message still undelivered.

SHORTS AND SHELLS. Besides being a stellar pass-receiver, Bill Howton of Rice has intercepted two enemy passes, which is right good for an end . . . Henry Thresher, the young sprint star who was stricken with polio last summer, has staged a rapid recovery and is ready to work out with the Yale track team . . . After Maryland's footballers went to town against North Carolina State, Coach Jim Tatum was asked how come he showed so much to the Tennessee scouts. Said Jim: "Bob Neyland knows more about our offense than my assistant coaches. He comes to my spring practice every year and I go to his, so we'll know what we're going to see on New Year's day."

'What Hit Me?' Asks Baker After Kayo

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Clarence Henry, 24-year-old Los Angeles Negro, is the newest threat in the heavyweight division after his sensational knockout win over Jumbo Bob Baker of Pittsburgh last night at Madison Square Garden.

What next?

That's the big problem for Henry who flattened Baker with a stunning left hook in 2.14 of the eighth round.

"I want to keep on going up the ladder," said Henry. "This guy was ahead of me. Now I'm No. 4. I want Rocky Marciano, Ezzy Charles and Joe Walcott."

Apparently beaten by the hulking Pittsburgh lad who was undefeated in 26 previous fights, Henry dropped Baker with a devastating left. Sliding through the ropes, Baker landed on his backside with his legs up in the air while Referee Ruby Goldstein counted 10.

"I don't know what it was," said Baker in his dressing room. He sure didn't. When Dr. Vincent Nardiello of the state athletic commission, hurried to his side after the knockout, Big Bob said, "What the hell hit me?"

Draft Board Says Michigan Gridder Given Deferment

TROY, O., Nov. 24—(AP)—A member of the Miami County draft board said Friday that a University of Michigan football player from Troy had been reclassified to allow him to finish the school year and play in the Ohio State - Michigan football game today.

John E. Butts said the draft board acted under protest at the recommendation of Ohio State selective service headquarters in classifying Wesley (Doc) Bradford 1-S. Bradford, is a junior and a halfback on the Michigan squad.

Asserting that Bradford was slated for induction "long before his present (school) term started," Butts said:

"It appears that the entire emphasis in his case was on whether or not he should be permitted to play in the Michigan-Ohio State game."

Butts said the local board was protesting the state headquarters' recommendation in a letter. The local board made the classification last Tuesday, he said.

In Columbus, Col. Chester W. Goble, state selective service director, said he had not heard of the Bradford case. He added that if Bradford was a student in good standing in the upper half of his class and had never been up for induction before, he was entitled to a deferment to finish the academic year.

Members of the state board of appeals which may have handled the Bradford case were not available for comment.

The Troy draft board's chairman recently resigned because of his objection to the national selective service policy of deferring college students to finish out the school year while drafting married men. Chairman Eugene F. Black said he disagreed with this policy.

Weather Seen as Factor

Browns Clash With Bears In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24—(AP)—Snow flurries may give the Chicago Bears a "big edge" over the Cleveland Browns, Coach Paul Brown feared today.

The Cleveland coach reasons like this: If it snows today, as forecast, the field will be mushy for tomorrow's game.

The Bears use a running attack, which isn't especially hampered by soft turf. The Browns may be forced to cancel a lot of the passing and employ a ground strategy, too, something they're pretty weak on this season.

A traditional worrier of the old school, Brown also is complaining about his team's offensive unit. He didn't like the way it looked in movies of last Sunday's game with the Giants.

Changes

So he plans the following changes: John Sandusky will open at right tackle in place of Lou Rymkus, captain of the offensive unit. That will be Rymkus' first failure to open a game for the Browns in 6 years, except for injuries.

Horace Gillom will start at right end instead of Mac Speedie Emerson Cole will divide the fullback assignment with Marion Motley, who got a hard workout last Sunday.

Over in Chicago, the Bears are loaded, having trained harder for this contest than for any other this year. Hunk Anderson, their line coach, promises some pretty solid blocking and tackling—old fashioned fundamentals instead of fancy plays out of some calculus book.

In plainer language, Hunk says the Bears will "kick hell out of the Browns."

Need A Victory

To the Bears, the outcome means staying in first place in the National Conference along with Los Angeles, or dropping down. The Browns can hardly miss winning the American Conference of the National Football League if they take tomorrow's game.

This will be the first time the 2 teams have met in a game that mattered. The Browns, however, have defeated the Bears twice in exhibition games, 32 to 21, this year, and 29 to 28 in 1950.

A crowd of around 50,000 is expected. The game will be televised, except that Cleveland area TV fans will be out of luck.

The Browns are favored by 7 points.

Problem for Giants' Owner

Believe Saigh Interested In Stanky as Manager

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Horace Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants and present employer of Eddie Stanky, today was wrestling with the toughest problem he has faced in his 16 years as president of the club.

Should he give up Stanky to the St. Louis Cardinals who want him as playing manager? Should he keep the scrappy little second baseman, the inspiration spark who drove the Giants to a pennant this year and who may do so again in 1952?

When Fred Saigh, astute president of the Red Birds, announced yesterday he would not renew Marty Marion's contract as manager, he immediately was queried about Stanky.

"I cannot be interested in Stanky," he said, "because he is the property of the New York Giants."

What Saigh meant was that he could not express publicly his interest in Stanky because that would constitute "tampering." But it is practically certain that Stanky would be Saigh's first choice as manager if he were available.

And why did Saigh ease Marion out and why does he prefer Stanky"

"Mr. Saigh thinks the world of Marion as a person and as a manager," a Red Bird official said. But he didn't think Marty was aggressive enough.

"He wanted a colorful, hustling fighting manager who will argue for his rights with the umpires, who will instill fighting spirit in his men, who will devote all his time to his job. Those are the qualities that Marion lacked and what Stanky possesses."

Easter Set For Knee Operation

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24—(AP)—Luke Easter leaves for Baltimore, Md., today to undergo an operation on his left knee at Johns Hopkins Hospital Monday.

The Cleveland Indians' first baseman was to have had the operation in Cleveland, but his surgeon, Dr. W. H. McGaw, has a hand injury.

Dr. George Bennett, a popular surgeon among baseball players, will operate on Luke's knee at Johns Hopkins.

YANK UPSETS AUSSIE

SYDNEY Australia, Nov. 24—(AP)—Vic Seixas, of Philadelphia, pulled out his finest tennis under extreme pressure today to defeat Mervyn Rose, 20-year-old Australian southpaw, 4-6, 9-7, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, in the final of the New South Wales championship before 14,000 on the White City courts.

"Too Young to Kiss," the story of a girl who poses as her kid sister in order to get her man, will be shown Sunday through Tuesday at the Palace Theater. Co-stars of the film are Van Johnson and June Allyson, with Gig Young and Paula Corday heading the supporting cast.

June Allyson is seen as a concert pianist who is constantly thwarted in her attempt to get an audition from a concert manager, played by Van Johnson. In desperation, she finally crashes a children's audition disguised as a thirteen-year-old and Van thinks he has discovered a new child prodigy.

Circumstances force June to continue the masquerade and even to live at Van's country house in preparation for her first concert. This experience brings about complications between the concert manager and his "prodigy."

A double feature, "Crosswinds," a technicolor adventure picture starring John Payne, Rhonda Fleming and Forrest Tucker, and "Darling, How Could You!" a comedy starring Joan Fontaine, John Lund, Mona Freeman and Peter Hanson, will be shown Friday and Saturday.

"Crosswinds" follows the fortunes of a devil-may-care sea captain, a redhead and a band of assorted cutthroats on the trail of gold, pearls and trouble. John Payne is seen as the prospecting seafarer cruising the South Pacific in search of fortune and adventure. He finds both, plus romance, when he drops anchor off Port Moresby and plots with an unscrupulous trader to hunt for pearls and gold. Rhonda Fleming gets in on the scheme to rig a forced landing of a gold laden plane.

The latter film explains what happens when a teen-age miss mistakenly concludes that her parents' marriage is headed for the rocks.

Fighting With Drug "Partnerships"

Yesterday, I mentioned that a drug called PAS (para-aminosalicylic acid) has proved very effective in treating certain types of tuberculosis when used in conjunction with the antibiotic streptomycin. Medical scientists have discovered several other drug "partnerships" which they are using to fight this scourge of man.

Just before streptomycin came into prominence, some good results were reported to have been obtained in certain cases with a group of drugs known as sulfone compounds. Streptomycin proved so effective that sulfone treatment was often discontinued before it was given a really adequate trial. Since then, added experiments have shown that the new sulfone drugs may be very effective, too, either alone or combined with streptomycin. In fact, there are reports that the sulfone group seems to give streptomycin even greater punch against the tuberculosis germ.

Another drug which has had some effect against tuberculosis when used alone is potassium iodide. In experimental animals, potassium iodide seems to enhance and stimulate the action of streptomycin against tuberculosis. Potassium iodide also stimulates the action of penicillin in the treatment of other chronic infections similar to tuberculosis. There is good reason to believe that this drug, when used with streptomycin, will do a great deal toward stamping out this disease.

Drugs containing iodine have also been effective in dissolving the cheese-like materials present in lungs with severe tubercular infections. Such drugs may thus help expose the tuberculosis germs to streptomycin, which can then attack them.

With this antibiotic doing such a wonderful job, scientists may now hope to eliminate tuberculosis from man entirely. Any drug that surpasses PAS in increasing the action of streptomycin would make a definite stride toward this goal.

Clinical trials with human beings, however, have not advanced far enough to determine the full effectiveness of these newer drugs.

End Trade Concessions With Russia

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—President Truman has ordered an end to tariff agreements under which this country gives Russia and Poland trade concessions equal to those afforded any other nation.

And another presidential order yesterday calls for an outright ban on bringing into the United States several types of furs from Russia and Red China. Furs are a major export from those countries.

The orders are effective Jan. 5.

The new tariff treatment ordered by Mr. Truman for Russia and Poland—Communist governed in close association with Russia—drops them from the list of nations to whom the United States promises the same tariff concessions it gives any "most favored" country. The U. S. gets a like pledge in return. The new order means Russian and Polish exports will now be subject to regular import duties at U. S. borders.

The president's action follows legislation passed last summer extending the reciprocal trade act. Congress directed that, as soon as possible, the President should withdraw tariff concessions granted to Russia and other Communist countries or areas.

Radar Speed Trap Foiled By Friend of Motorists

GREENSBORO, N. C.—(UP)—Greensboro police were proud of the way their new radar speed-detecting device was working.

They set it up on a busy thoroughfare and summoned 10 motorists to court.

Suddenly, traffic slowed down and the radar speedometer — nicknamed "the whammy"—was getting no customers. Police were mystified. Drivers just won't reform that quickly.

They discovered the reason just around a curve in the road. A well-meaning elderly man was flagging down each passing car to pass the word that "the whammy" was waiting.

The patrolmen warned the warner and moved their radar box to a new location.

Lost and Stolen Gems Called Underinsured

CHICAGO—(UP) — More than 50 per cent of the jewels lost or stolen so far this year were under insured, an insurance company survey says.

"Too many people lost money replacing missing jewels," said John A. Arnold, vice president of National Retailers Mutual Insurance Co. "Their insurance paid only a portion of the replacement cost."

The hardest hit was the group that bought jewelry more than three years ago, he said.

He cited the example of a man who bought a diamond ring in 1941 for $350 and insured it for that amount. When the ring was lost last summer, the man learned it would cost him $1,200 to duplicate it today.

Hotel Man Gets Tough But Guest Wins Out

ST. LOUIS — (UP) — Police agreed with an unwelcome roomer that Ray Rapert, manager of the Albany Hotel, used the wrong method to persuade him to move.

Rapert admitted he fired two pistol shots to frighten Lee Williams. The slugs lodged in a wall.

Police booked both men for peace disturbance and Rapert for discharging a firearm in the city.

My Jesus, I Love Thee

A hymn is nearly a century old before the author is known.

Three quarters of a century ago New England's renowned Baptist minister, A. J. Gordon, sat in his Boston study and thumbed through an English hymnbook. The hymnal had been published in 1864 and bore the title, "The London Hymn Book." The words to a number under the title, "My Jesus, I Love Thee," so impressed Dr. Gordon that, in his opinion, the music fell short of doing the lyric justice. There was no way of knowing who the author was as the publisher simply put "Anonymous" over the verses. But Dr. Gordon determined to give the unknown author his just due with a tune worthy of the inspiring words.

Andoniram Judson Gordon, D.D. (named for the pioneer Baptist missionary) was one of the last century's most able editors of religious materials. He wrote several successful books, edited two hymnals, composed music and, before he died in 1895, held some of the largest pulpits in Massachusetts, among them being famous Tremont Temple.

Doctor Gordon composed his tune for "My Jesus, I Love Thee" and the hymn has been a favorite ever since. It is found in select collections along with the stately works of Watts, Wesley, Newton and Cowper. And it has withstood the fine-comb criticism of scholarly editors for the most exacting hymnals of many denominations.

It would have been interesting had Dr. Gordon known who the anonymous author was. In very recent years the name of the writer has come to light. His name was William Ralph Featherstone and he wrote his hymn just after his conversion in Toronto in 1858. Featherstone died 20 years later, at the age of 36. He was born in 1842, and that is the point that would have been really interesting. "My Jesus, I Love Thee" was written by a Canadian boy just 16 years old.

My Jesus, I love Thee, I know Thou art mine,
For Thee all the follies of sin I resign;
My gracious Redeemer, my Saviour art Thou;
If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now.

I love Thee because Thou hast first loved me,
And purchased my pardon on Calvary's tree;
I love Thee for wearing the thorns on Thy brow;
If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now.

I'll love Thee in life, I will love Thee in death
And praise Thee as long as Thou lendest me breath;
And say when the death-day lies cold on my brow;
If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now.

In mansions of glory and endless delight,
I'll ever adore Thee in Heaven so bright,
I'll sing with the glittering crown on my brow,
If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now.

GOD NEEDS YOU — YOU NEED GOD

With or Without God?

A Sermonette

By REV. J. PAUL GOEBEL
Pastor of First Evangelical and Reformed Church

"Having no hope and without God in the world."
— Ephesians 2:12

EVERYTHING THAT is done in partnership with God is bound to be a success. Anything undertaken without God is foredoomed to failure. This is a principle so deeply imbedded in the structure of the universe that to fly in the face of it is as crazy as for a man to ram his head against a stone wall. Anyone who does that is put down as a fool, which is exactly what the Bible calls the person who acts as if God did not exist: "The fool saith in his heart, there is no God." Why, after centuries of tragic experience men still insist on playing the fool is one of the deep mysteries of human nature.

Why act without God, and make a mess of your life, when by acting with God you can make a glorious success of it? The partnership that a man willingly establishes with God is assured of success. There is no guess-work about it. It is as dependable as a mathematical formula.

* * *

OF COURSE, a man may have to revise his idea of success. Tinsel will no longer pass for pure gold. Things will inevitably take a lower place in his scale of values. Wealth will be recognized as non-essential. For as Jesus said long ago: "A man's life does not exist in the abundance of things that he possesses." The prevailing conception of success may have to be put down as dismal failure; and what is ordinarily thought of as complete failure may have to be recognized as shining success. The real touchstone will be: Was this condition arrived at with God or without Him?

When hot-headed Moses set about righting the wrongs suffered by his enslaved fellow-Israelites, he made a big blunder. Murdering the Egyptian taskmaster got him nowhere, but only made of him a fugitive and delayed the liberation of his people. When he returned, it was with God and at His command that he undertook the impossible, and succeeded.

* * *

WHEN LATER the impatient Israelites attempted to occupy the Promised Land without God's blessing, they met with ignominious defeat. By bitter experience they finally learned that without God's higher wisdom they were finished.

With or without God? is the question which lovers must face vidual as he undertakes to construct his own life. If God is allowed to be his partner, he will succeed in building something of eternal value and beauty. If God is by-passed, his life will finally collapse, however attractive may be the temporary shell.

With or without God? is the question on which lovers must face frankly and answer correctly if their relationship is to be satisfying and enduring. Love in which God is a partner leads to the establishing of a home in which God is present. Homes planned and constructed without God, the divine Architect, are foredoomed to disappointment and disillusionment, where love turns to ashes and marriage ends in divorce

* * *

WITH OR WITHOUT God? is the fundamental issue in the life of every nation. Our forefathers undertook the building of a nation in deliberate co-operation with divine Providence, knowing full-well that "unless God builds the house, they labor in vain that build it."

That philosophy is being brazenly challenged in the world today by those who are avowedly atheistic, that is, without God, and even anti-religious. The atheistic structure will collapse, however imposing it may seem at the moment, for it is of the essence of the tower of Babel. The stars are fighting against it.

In every community the same struggle is going on. The pagan attitude is to ignore God, act as if we did not need Him, indeed, as if he did not exist.

One ringing answer to that insidious philosophy is the current RIAL program, which boldly and on a national scale maintains that religion shall have a prominent and vital place in American life. Which is but another way of saying what the Bible has been proclaiming through the centuries: Apart from God there is no hope. Without God we cannot win. With Him we cannot fail.

The Boggess healing revival now being conducted on the corner of Woodrow and Highland is attracting enthusiastic crowds. Last night the great Southern preacher was at his best as he told with tears in his eyes how "God told me to go and preach the gospel and heal the sick." "I've seen hundreds healed" he said. The sick of this community are being invited to be anointed and prayed for.

The Japanese Priest Said: "DOMINUS VOBISCUM"

It was early Sunday morning in Tokyo. A cosmopolitan congregation had assembled in the Catholic church for the first Mass of the day. Along with the Japanese present, there were English, French and Portuguese sailors, the family of a Belgian diplomat, Filipino business men and a sprinkling of U. S. Military Police.

The Japanese priest was compelled to start the service without an assistant to answer the prayers. He had hardly begun the Mass, when a burly GI rose from his seat, walked to the altar and took the place of the absent server.

"At first," he said afterwards, "I felt a little strange serving a Jap priest in a Jap church. But after he turned around and said in Latin: 'Dominus vobiscum!'...I felt just the way I did when I served Father O'Malley in our church back home."

"Dominus vobiscum!"..."The Lord be with you!"

How familiar and homelike those Latin words sounded...to the English, the French, the Portuguese Belgians and Filipinos ...for they had heard them Sunday after Sunday in their own church at home.

Despite their language differences, each could follow the prayers of the Mass ...and the actions of the priest. For each had a double-column prayer book—one column in Latin, one in his native language.

Many services of divine worship in the Catholic Church are conducted in the native language of the people. But the Mass...the official and world-wide act of Catholic worship..is generally conducted in Latin because this dead language never changes and is most appropriate to express the fundamentally unchanging worship instituted by Christ at the Last Supper.

Perhaps you have heard Catholics speak of the Mass.. or have seen them thronging to Mass on Sunday and other days. If you would like to know more about the Mass...and why the Mass attracts millions of Catholics to church regularly...we will be happy to send you a free pamphlet explaining the Mass and reasons behind it in a clear-cut manner. Write today..., ask for Pamphlet No. 6-N.

Confident Living

How You Can Get People To Like You

By Norman Vincent Peale

A SUBJECT upon which I have written and spoken frequently is how to get people to like you. Yet I never seem able to say enough about it because of all the problems I meet in my counseling work, this is one of the most evident.

I see a continual parade of weary, sick, unhappy people whose first question always seems to be: "Dr. Peale, nobody seems to like me; how can I get people to like me?"

The key to their thinking is expressed in that one little word: me. They have no friends because they have always spent all their time thinking me instead of you, they have become increasingly self-centered rather than of their group and their community.

Dr. Peale

Because this question has come up so often, I have prepared a card with my 10 rules for getting the esteem of others printed on it. I give this card to all of those who come to me with this problem. Perhaps these rules can help you, too. If not, you may want to pass them on to a friend who can make use of them.

* * *

THERE ARE VERY simple rules—and they emphasize the you instead of the me:

First: Learn to remember names. Inefficiency at this point may indicate that your interest is not sufficiently outgoing. A man's name is very important to him.

Second: Be a comfortable person so that there is no strain in being with you. Be an old shoe, old hat kind of individual. Be homey.

Third: Acquire the quality of relaxed easy-goingness so that things do not ruffle you.

Fourth: Don't be egotistical. Guard against giving the impression you know it all. Be natural and humble.

Fifth: Cultivate the quality of being stimulating and interesting so that people will want to be with you and get something from you.

Sixth: Study to get the scratchy elements (even those of which you may be unconscious) out of your personality. Expert counseling by your minister or doctor may help in this.

Seventh: Sincerely attempt to heal, on an honest man-to-man basis, every misunderstanding you have had or now have. Drain off your grievances.

Eighth: Definitely practice liking people until you learn to do so genuinely. Will Rogers once said, "I never met a man I didn't like." Try to be that way.

Ninth: Never miss an opportunity to say a word of congratulations upon anyone's achievement, or express sympathy in sorrow or disappointment.

Tenth: Get a deep spiritual experience so that you have something to give to people that will help them to be stronger and meet life more effectively. They will love you for it.

In outlining these rules I have followed the step-by-step technique advocated by Dr. Rudolf Flesch, the outstanding authority on "readability". Presumably you should have no difficulty in understanding and following them. If you do find them hard to master, I refer you to the world's greatest masterpiece of readability. You will find it in your Bible, in the twelfth verse of the seventh chapter of Matthew: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them . . ."

The sincere practice of the principles of The Sermon on the Mount in everyday living is the only way I know of getting people to like you. Start today to live by those teachings and you will never lack friends.

Reports that have been coming in from the churches indicate that there has been a definite increase in attendance and renewed interest in the church services. The church reporting the largest number of people taking someone to church with them is the First Church of the Nazarene where 25 people recently reported that they had brought others to services.

On recent Sundays there has been an exchange of lay representatives in several of the churches for the purpose of making brief talks in the Church School and in the worship service in the interest of the RIAL program.

EPWORTH METHODIST YOUTH CENTER, "OUR HOUSE"

"Our House" At 10th Year

Methodists To Celebrate Youth Center Anniversary

Tenth anniversary of "Our House," Epworth Methodist youth center at 129 S. Vine St., will be celebrated by both young people and adults alike next week, with a banquet and special program. The event will be Wednesday, at 6 p.m., in the new basement dining room of the church, and the program will be presented on the new stage.

The idea of the tenth being the "tin" anniversary has been turned to use in the theme of the celebration which is "Tin Pan Alley Band Parade." This will take the form of a "backward glance," with young people who were kindergarteners 10 years ago when the house first became "Our House," making up a "rhythm band" in true kindergarten fashion. Mrs. L. M. Yinger, Miss Suzellen Roest and Mrs. Mary Maison are "training the kindergarteners." Stanley Lawrence will be band director, and soloists will include John Hendel, Dale Burkley, and Linda Schwab.

10-Year Music Span

Music familiar in the last 10 years will be used. Miss Nancy Indoe, chairman for the banquet, will sing "Moon Over Our House." A history of "Our House" will be included. The babies and children who have grown up in the last 10 years will be introduced.

Stanley Moore, first president of "Our House," will be toastmaster. Members of the board of the house will sit at the toastmaster's table. A color film, "The Littlest Angel," will be shown.

Told in the historical sketch will be the beginnings of our house, the purchase of the century-old tumbled down place which was completely restored by the enthusiastic youth group, and something of the many activities which have gone on within its walls to make it a place of special meaning to all who have worked and played and worshiped there during the years.

Miss Indoe has been one of the most active members of the youth groups, children's intermediate, and high school age, taking part in the total program of "Our House." She is a member of the Correlated Council of which Miss Ann Thomas is president.

Committee List

Committees working with her include Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Moore, Miss Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Indoe, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Nash, Miss Arlene Houpt, Mr. and Mrs. George K. Brown, Miss Mary Guy, Tom Tatham, Joe Buettin, Miss Marilyn Bradley, Mrs. C. H. Indoe, and Mrs. Homer Waddell, program.

The doll that cries REAL tears!

Here is the wonderful doll that cries like a real child. Big, wet tears roll down her fat, chubby cheeks as she cries lustily to be changed, fed, bathed and pampered . . . Where To Paint

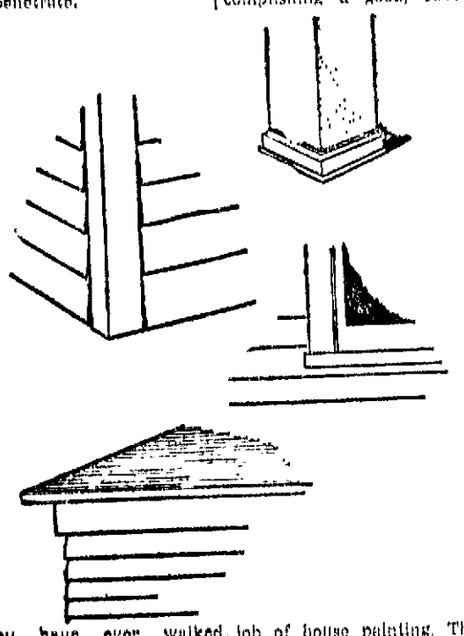
With all the information available about painting, there is little excuse for anyone not knowing how to mix and apply paint, but not enough emphasis has been put on the importance of painting in certain places, as a protection against decay.

According to the best authorities, it is more important to paint in the places shown by the accompanying illustrations than it is to cover the plain surface of a house wall. The reason for this is very simple; namely, the fact that all house decay and deterioration starts in some out-of-way corner or where two pieces of wood are joined. It is through these cracks that the weather is able to penetrate.



If you have ever walked around an old, abandoned house, you will probably have noticed that the base of the columns or posts of the porch were in very bad shape. This is because there are always moldings and beads around the base which have shrunk up and the weather was able to enter and set up decay. The next noticeable spot in a neglected old structure will be at the corner of the house where boards meet the corner-board and present a long line of joints. The third place for more obvious rot will be around the window frames where the exterior finish butts against the frames. Probably the next worst condition that could have been protected by paint will be found around the trim of the roof edges and eaves.

To forestall all this decay, there is a standard method for accomplishing a good, substantial job of house painting. The first step is to wash the house so as to avoid applying good paint over a layer of dirt and consequently not getting a bond to the old paint. The second rule is a dry surface, free of loose or scaling paint. The next rule is a "touching-up" of the spots mentioned above, so that all the small crevices and cracks are filled to capacity before the allover new coat of paint is brushed on. Follow these directions and you will have a lasting job.

If a crack exists which is so wide that paint will not fill it, it must be "caulked" by filling with linseed oil putty or a good caulking compound, and then touched up.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Frosting Storm Windows

Q.: Is there anything I can do to keep our storm windows from frosting? Before I put them on this year I would like to take any necessary steps.

A.: Bore a few small holes, about four inches apart, along the bottom of the storm sash. This will permit circulation of the air between the storm sash and the window, and this treatment frequently eliminates frosting altogether.

* * *

Dirty Shingles

Q.: We live near a railroad and the resulting smoke has stained our white shingles badly. Can you suggest a remedy?

A.: My suggestion would be to brush the shingles well to remove as much dirt and grime as possible and paint with rubber base masonry paint. Because of the location of the house, I should think a medium grey would be a good, practical shade.

* * *

Waterproofing Brick

Q.: In cold weather the drain pipe from the roof freezes and the water runs over the gutter and along the drain pipe and seeps through the brick wall. This spoils the wallpaper. Is there any way I can keep the water out?

A.: I suggest that you coat the brick with transparent liquid waterproofing available at masonry supply dealers. In addition, all broken and cracked mortar joints should be tuck-pointed.

* * *

Brightening Brass Knobs

Q.: There are some fancy knobs on the drawers of my bedroom suite. However, they are getting brassy and scratchy looking. Is there any way I can give them a bright finish?

A.: Wash the brass with lacquer thinner to remove all traces of dust and grease. Then brighten the metal with metal polish. Wipe clean with benzine (be careful of fire) and when dry finish with clear lacquer.

* * *

Painting of Radiators

Q.: We have been told that aluminum painted radiators give off less heat than those coated with a colored paint. Since we are going to paint the room we wondered if we could use the same wall paint on the radiators as they would blend with the walls.

A.: The advice you received is correct. Radiators painted with flat wall paint or enamel will give off about 15 per cent more heat. When using flat wall paint it is advisable to make it one or two shades lighter for radiator work because the heat will tend to darken the paint slightly. Before starting the work, wipe the radiators with turpentine and apply paint in thin coats. Radiators must remain cold from the time you start the work until the final coat is thoroughly dry.

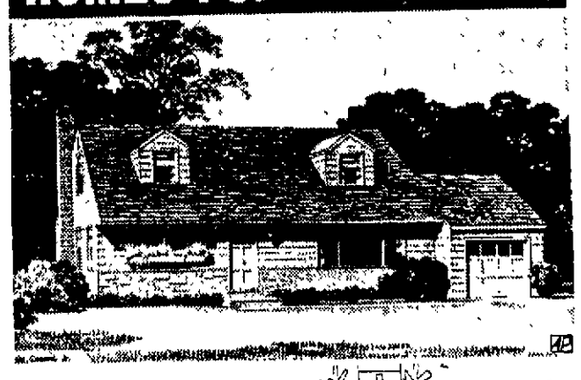
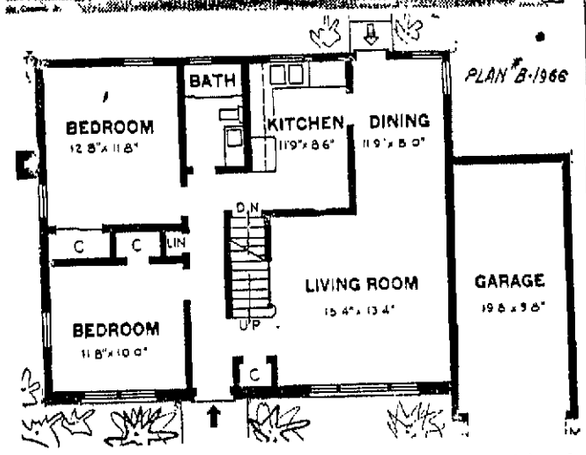
HOMES FOR AMERICANS





A CENTER HALL plan is perennially popular because of its efficiency in room layout. No room becomes a passageway. In this plan B-1966, Architect Alwin Cassens Jr. of 145 S. Franklin Ave., Valley Stream, N. Y., has opened the back door into the dining room to allow for an outdoor dining terrace. The house has an expansion attic for additional bedrooms and extra bath. Plumbing is concentrated for economy with kitchen and bath back-to-back. The house has a complete basement, covers an area of only 926 square feet, without garage, and contains 20,420 cubic feet. A fireplace could be added by placing the chimney between living room and garage or by using an inside chimney at the corner of living room and dining room.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARBUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

THE NEW FEDERAL income tax, which began taking a bigger bite out of your pay check Nov. 1, is giving the home owner a new break.

Anyone now selling his house at a profit and using the entire proceeds of the deal for the purchase of another residence, enjoys an exemption from capital gains tax on the profit he made on his old house.

This means if you bought a house say 10 years ago for $10,000, and sell today for $20,000, you do not have to give Uncle Sam $2,500 in capital gains tax out of your $10,000 profit. That is, you don't have to pay it, if you use all the money in the purchase of another house to live in.

Experienced observers expect this to result in a big stimulation to the house market.

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, Henry J. Davenport, president of the Home Title Guaranty Co., of New York which operates in the three states of Connecticut, New Jersey and New York an area in which many thousands of titles change hands yearly—sees this new law freeing many families who have been prevented from buying new homes because of the tax handicap involved.

"Many families needing larger homes have found the capital gains tax an insurmountable obstacle," Mr. Davenport says, "because increasing building costs and lower purchasing power of the dollar have offset whatever net profit was available on an older house."

The new law exempts any place of "principal residence" from this penalty. It covers a houseboat or trailer, or stock in co-operative apartment corporation, provided it is your principal residence.

* * *

A BIG LEEWAY in time is allowed. You can sell your old house as much as a year before or after you buy, and still get the exemption. Any house sold after last Dec. 31 is qualified for the exemption. This embraces all houses sold this year.

If you are having a new house built, you are allowed 18 months for applying your profit without tax, but you must occupy the newly-built house within 18 months after selling your old house.

The price in the sale or purchase under this exemption includes mortgage, trust deed or other indebtedness to which the property may be subject, whether or not the purchaser assumes that indebtedness.

If part of either property is used for business or trade, such as a store under an apartment, the exemption applies only to that proportion relating to residence.

Any part of the profit not invested in a new place of residence naturally is subject to tax. If the house you paid $10,000 for is sold for $20,000 and you buy a house for $15,000, the $5,000 difference is subject to tax.

However, you don't have to be occupying the house at the time of sale or purchase. If you rent either the old house or new house for a short time, but occupy each as your residence before the time limits expires, your are eligible for the exemption.

* * *

REAL ESTATE speculators are excluded from the benefits, because a third purchase takes into account the profits on the second purchase, the house must be used for residence, and short-term (six-months) capital gains are still taxed at 50 per cent. The exemption applies to only one sale or exchange per year, except when a new residence is involuntarily converted, such as through condemnation.

Personal property, furniture, a radio, or any other appurtenance which is not considered a fixture, is not included in the calculation.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards cites the new provision as a victory in its six years of campaigning in Washington. Alexander Summer, president of that organization, says "the injustice of the old law was spotlighted this year as workers were forced to move from one city to another as a result of the mobilization program."

One result of the new law will be to help home owners hurdle the restrictions of Regulation X, which requires larger cash payments for houses.

PRINTS PUT FINGER ON ESCAPEE. Picked up on a drunk charge by Detroit police, Thomas Hawley, 81, turns out to be a convict who escaped from Joliet, Ill. prison 34 years ago while serving a 25-year murder sentence. Hawley, in the prison ward of Receiving Hospital, told police that the warden encouraged him to escape from prison back in 1917. The 81-year-old fugitive, who married after his escape, was arrested threet imes between 1922 and 1931 and again in 1937 and 1939 and served four months in the Detroit House of Correction without anyone checking his fingerprints against the bureau's "wanted list." Such a routine check caught him this time.

Love Triumphant

By ADELE GARRISON

"I hope I'm immune to disparaging comments upon any companion I choose to bring into the Lansfield," I told Bess Conway. "But," I added with a smile, "I will admit you're quite a 'dish' in the get-up. However, you needn't worry, no one save the taxi driver and Adams will see you until we reach the sanctuary of our own suite. Adams will be waiting, and he always makes the taxi driver wait until no casual passers-by are near enough to see us. Are you ready to go back now?"

"Quite," she said with a gamin grin that was positively ghastly on her altered face.

"Then, may I use your telephone?"

"Surely," she answered. "It's right over there on that little shelf."

I was able to get hold of Mr. Olsen, the Lansfield's manager, almost immediately, and when I had given him my usual coded message, he agreed to have Adams waiting at the entrance of the building on the next street, well in advance of our coming. I smiled reassuringly at Bess and Mildred as I hung up the receiver.

"Everything under control," I told them. "How many flights up are you here, Bess?"

"Four," she answered, "and I'm a mind-reader. You think we'd better walk down."

"Yes I do," I told her. "I'll go first to get a taxi, and you two please follow me—how many minutes later, Bess?"

"Seven," she replied promptly. "You'll have to walk to the corner to get a cab. Have him draw up exactly in front of the entrance, and tell him he'll be paid for his waiting time. Mildred and I will wait seven minutes, and then walk down, hoping you'll be there, and we'll wait inside the outer door, until you do come, if you should be delayed. Fortunately there is no doorman at this modest apartment building, and—let me add my last touch."

She went to the closet again, and emerged with a voluminous mourning veil which she deftly clipped to her hat — her whole outfit was of a dingy black color—and we again applauded, for while she still appeared to be a dowdy, pudgy figure, her features were effectually concealed.

"Perfect!" I told her, as I started for the door. "Put up a prayer that I'll get a taxi quickly."

"Mildred had better take over the praying," Bess quipped. "You know the Good Book says that only the prayers of the righteous avail."

"If I ever could have qualified, I can't any more," Mildred retorted. "I'm afraid I'm getting to be an accomplished fibber."

"Don't be afraid!" Bess admonished her, "Gloat, dearie, gloat!"

I went through the door to the accompaniment of their laughter, glad to see that Mildred was not troubled by the ultra-Puritan scruples which I had attributed to her. She was very human—and very appealing, I told myself, as I went down the four flights of stairs to the street.

Luck was with me. I found a taxi and was able to get back to the apartment building within the time limit Bess had set. The girls came out as the taxi drew up, and I think the driver, with an eye on the extra "waiting money" I had promised him, was disappointed at their promptness.

Our journey back to the hotel was prosaically uneventful, and Adams was waiting outside the door of the building on the next street to that on which the hotel faced. When he was ushering us into the building, Bess put a muted request to me.

"Will you ask him, please, if he knows of any inquiries being made about me?" she asked.

Churches Unite For Mission

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE — Ten churches are cooperating in the "preaching mission" services that will be held nightly Nov. 25 to 30 in the Central Methodist Church at Richwood with the Rev G. W. Wilcher of Marysville Methodist Church as speaker.

Judge Streit's Aim

THE full text of the statement by General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit on basketball bribery in New York reveals his aim more clearly than the abstract made available early this week.

Judge Streit had made a personal investigation of collegiate sports in the process of arriving at a decision before pronouncing sentence against 14 players and a professional gambler convicted of bribery under New York law. Though primarily concerned with the defendants awaiting sentence, he extended his interest to the athletic situation in colleges generally. He mentioned such widely separated examples as the University of Denver and Ohio State. The purpose was to show that the rotten situation in certain New York colleges was duplicated in many other parts of the country.

The judge had another purpose, too, which was to show that coaches and college authorities were deeply involved in the corruption. Speaking of the coaches he had talked to in the New York cases, he said: "The naivete, the equivocation and the denials of the coaches and their assistants concerning their knowledge of gambling, recruiting and substituting would be comical were it not so despicable."

Judge Streit could sentence a handful of bribe-takers and a bribe-giver to terms in prison. He could point accusingly, while doing so, at the real culprits—the adults who have dirtied up basketball and football with their greed for money, so he did so, with results that will still be sizzling long after the bribe-takers and one of the bribers have cooled off in obscurity.

One Thing at a Time

WE AMERICANS are poorly adapted for leadership in a complex world, because we can concentrate on only one thing at a time. Unfortunately, more than one thing at a time is happening.

More is happening now than the warmup for next year's election. Certainly more is happening than the epidemic of ill health sweeping through the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Or if it's the Communist conspiracy which is the focus of concentration, a great deal more is happening than the effort to resist it. Great Britain is on the verge of economic collapse, that fact is known though not yet evaluated.

Not even known yet is the economic catastrophe descending on France, a catastrophe which is duplicated in Yugoslavia and Italy, to name two more countries which might be concentrated on—one at a time.

Typical of our inability to keep track of multiple problems was preoccupation with politics when Gen. Eisenhower came home for a brief visit. The likelihood is that he came home to make a first-hand report on the economic deterioration of Europe which threatens to wreck the military project he is directing.

Unless a miracle occurs, it will be evident soon that the Marshall Plan only postponed what it was supposed to avert. Its beneficiaries failed to help themselves while they were being helped with American production. They are unable to rearm.

It is not a happy thought. It will have trouble getting attention for the next month at least, because during that time Americans will be concentrating on jingle bells and what to give the "man who already has everything."

The Plea Is Guilty

EVERY taxpayer contributing to security against the Communist conspiracy can feel a little better in the light of the Soviet Union's accusation that the United States is financing subversive activities behind the iron curtain.

Despite the formality of denial, the accusation is presumptively true. The presumption is based on an obscure section of the mutual security act which gives the President of the United States authority to pay for underground organizations behind the iron curtain. Money can be spent for arming persons who have escaped and want to get revenge, or it can be used "for other purposes."

Even though the diplomats must be coy and pretend, they don't know what other purposes the Soviet Union may be talking about, the Soviet Union presumably knows what it is talking about. Through its own subversive organization, the International Communist party, it is undermining the prestige of every government on earth. If the United States is undermining the Kremlin's prestige by financing even the flimsiest of underground movements in the Russian sphere of influence, the Kremlin would have a right to feel indignant.

A few generations ago, the most dreaded revolutionary movement in the world was liberalism after the American pattern. It gave the rulers who then lived in the Kremlin cold chills; it struck terror into the hearts of despots everywhere. If the crazy Americans have gone to work on despotism again where it's weakest —with its own people — there is something more to be afraid of than tanks, planes and bombs.

Gen. MacArthur's Uniform

By David Lawrence

Apt Answer Made To Democratic Critic

WASHINGTON

AN AIDE to General MacArthur has made a very interesting answer to questions raised concerning the propriety or impropriety of an officer in uniform making public speeches which could have a political meaning.

The episode arose through the criticism leveled by Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, who declared that General MacArthur should remove his Army uniform when "making Republican political speeches."

LAWRENCE

General Courtney Whitney, aide to General MacArthur, answers this way:

"When certain senior officers of the Army have spoken in uniform in support of the Administration policy, no such criticism has been voiced. This seems to boil down to the strange concept that it is nonpartisan to defend policy but highly partisan to criticize it. It adds emphasis to the warning General MacArthur has so often voiced of the efforts being made to control and even suppress free speech in this country."

What General Whitney undoubtedly was referring to was a speech made by the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Bradley, in Chicago just prior to the appearance of General MacArthur last summer before the joint session of Congress. General Bradley, appearing in uniform, made what is called an "anticipatory rebuttal," before General MacArthur uttered a single word of testimony in his own defense. The Bradley speech was generally regarded as the expression of the Administration.

* * *

WHEN CRITICISM of General Bradley's speech was voiced, it was immediately countered that the speech had been scheduled for some time. Nothing was said about the fact that public speakers, especially government officials, have often canceled speeches under the pressure of public business and that at times they have even changed the nature of their speeches at the last moment in order not to embarrass the Administration.

General MacArthur has never made an explicitly political speech but has made what are called implicit speeches. This is the sort of utterance in which President Truman also has indulged from time to time.

Not long ago the President went to the west coast for a very honorable and important errand—namely, to participate in the ceremonies in connection with the signing of the Japanese peace treaty. But the same day, during the afternoon, instead of meeting with the American delegation, he used the time at his disposal to attend a Democratic party rally on the Pacific Coast. No democratic party spokesman criticized that action, which was a misuse of the presidential office on an important international occasion. Was any part of that trip paid for by the Democratic national committee?

* * *

THE OTHER DAY when the President flew up from Key West to Washington, Representative Busbey of Illinois, Republican, declared that this was obviously a political trip and should be paid for by the Democratic national committee. The President was in town just long enough to make a political speech and then went back to his vacation at Key West. Will the cost of that trip be borne by the White House—that is, by the government—or will it be borne by the Democratic national committee? Whether General MacArthur wears a uniform when making political speeches doesn't matter as much as whether the taxpayers are paying for political trips of the President of the United States.

General MacArthur is in the peculiar position of having been fired by the President for what many people regard as political reasons. Notwithstanding all the excuses and afterthoughts recorded in the testimony in Congress, it is plain that Mr. Truman dismissed the general because he wrote a letter to Republican leader Joseph W. Martin in answer to an inquiry from him concerning American policy in the Far East. Mr. Truman didn't even give the general a chance to come home and talk it over. Nor did he qualify his order of dismissal but covered removal of General MacArhtur as Allied commander in Japan, where everybody admitted that the general had done an outstanding job.

* * *

TO SAY THAT General MacArthur cannot rightly wear his uniform to speak in rebuttal against the arbitrary act of the President who fired him is really to encroach upon the rights of a citizen in the community. It certainly is an invasion of personal liberty to tell an individual what he may or may not wear while making a public speech. This correspondent happens to believe that General MacArthur would be well advised not to wear his uniform while making any public speeches of a controversial nature, just because it arouses unnecessary debate, but would defend to the utmost, on the other hand, the right of General MacArthur to wear that uniform if that's the way he wants to make his public appearances. There certainly is no law or rule against any general or any retired officer wearing his uniform whenever and wherever he pleases. It's all a matter of individual preference.

Why Not Today?

By TRUMAN TWILL

IF THE auto-makers knew what effect their experimental models were having on their customers, they would mention them no more.

Every time the customers run across another item about some fantastic improvement which is going to be included in the cars of the future, it sets them to brooding about the fantastic blunders in the cars they're still paying for.

If Detroit has any ingenuity that runneth over into tomorrow, what is the sense in not using it today—right now, before automobiles suffer the fate of the dinosaur?

The dinosaur, it will be recalled, became an orphan model because it was badly designed. Today it survives only in museums. That is what is going to happen to automobiles, unless they can be built in such a way that a passenger can get in and out of them without bashing in his head or dislocating his hip.

It is the fate in store for them unless they quit becoming so complicated in their innards that ordinary mechanics cannot understand them any more. And in that respect, they also are heading for the boneyard unless something is done to enable aforesaid mechanics to reach aforesaid innards. When their vital workings get so far out of reach that a mechanic has to climb under the hood on all fours to make what used to be a simple adjustment on a carburetor, someone up in Detroit has been taking dope before sitting down at the drawing board.

Then there is this matter of letting little secrets grow up between the manufacturers and their customers. One of these popped into the clear in the case of the Twillery taxmobile the other day after a second helping of anti-freeze had disappeared mysteriously. It turned out, quite by accident, that the wrong kind was being put in. But there had been no information provided on the matter. There was no sign posted.

Nor has there been any information provided on other matters in the same category. Any honest mechanic will admit in shocked tones that it takes a combination of genius and luck to keep modern automobiles running at all. They have outstripped the comprehension of the people who own them and repair them.

New models with built-in mysteries are put on the roads these days without a fighting chance of being fixed if the osculator, oscillator or accelerator get fouled up. Some of them operate properly on fuel not generally obtainable. More often than not, their simplest functions have been fouled up so completely by their designers that no one really understands what is supposed to happen any more, let alone how to make it happen.

Instead of drooling over the automobiles which are going to be built in 2000 A.D., let's build some today that can be maintained without black magic, huh?

What the Fight Is About

By George E. Sokolsky

I WAS looking at a mountainous pile of things to read when I came across an address by Delbert Clark, who is classified as director of educational activities, New York Times.

Mr. Clark says in this speech:

"At one time in our national history such people would have been called liberals, at another time progressives; what they stood for might have been opposed by some, but few would have dared condemn them as bad citizens. Yet in the past few years they have found it more and more economically and socially unsafe to continue as in the past. They find themselves criticized as Communists or fellow-travelers for supporting equality of opportunity for all; for believing what the Constitution says about civil rights; for publicly preferring peace to war; for espousing federal aid for low income housing; for believing in government-sponsored health insurance; for supporting the idea of world government. And within the past month we have even been subjected to the spectacle of high-minded, patriotic citizens being denounced as traitors because the foreign policy they advocated in a specific instance had not worked out."

SOKOLSKY

* * *

THIS PARAGRAPH accumulated interest in the year after it was spoken, particularly as we now have to report more than 100,000 casualties in Korea, with nearly 20,000 dead, not including the number of massacred prisoners of war. Mr. Clark does not name the "high-minded patriotic citizens" who made the mistakes that have forced us to remobilize for war, to reinstitute conscription, to raise a budget of about $100,000,000,0000, to increase taxes, to restore controls over our food.

Mr. Clark avoids altogether the question of moral responsibility. We are asked to assume that there were no motives for errors, that they were not made in ignorance, or to pursue some ideological stubbornness or because of treacherous associations.

A boy hopped up with marijuana who kills another boy goes to jail for as long as 20 years perhaps, but a statesman who sends 20,000 American boys to death because a foreign policy "had not worked out" only made a mistake and apparently should get a congressional medal for his pains!

* * *

MR. DELBERT CLARK further says:

"Paul Draper, the dancer, a while back brought suit in Connecticut against a woman who publicly called him a Communist. I don't know Draper nor do I know whether he is or is not a Communist. But I do know that a large and extremely noisome newspaper chain whipped up a violent campaign of synthetic fury against him before the case was heard in court, and frightened a broadcasting company into reprimanding the conductor of a program who had invited Draper to appear.

"This is the very nearly perfect illustration of the new and terrifying notion that a citizen is no longer innocent until proved guilty, a logical corollary of the doctrines of guilt by association. Thus a popular New York newspaper was able to say in all apparent seriousness that Alger Hiss 'had ample opportunity to prove himself innocent.'"

The facts are: Igor Cassini, Westbrook Pegler, Fulton Lewis Jr., and I undertook to raise a defense fund for Mrs. McCullough, who lacked the means to defend herself and her home, which was attacked under an obsolete law. Although Paul Draper did not win his case and eventually dropped the suit, the cost to Mrs. McCullough could have been ruinous and was surely embarrassing.

* * *

WAS IT RIGHT for Alger Hiss to raise such a fund for his defense but wrong for us to raise one for Mrs. McCullough? Does Mr. Delbert Clark really believe that Alger Hiss in hearings before a congressional committee, appearances before a grand jury and two trials in open court did not have "ample a grand jury and two trials in open court did not have "ample opportunity to prove himself innocent?" Does this educational director of the New York Times still believe that Alger Hiss is innocent? Does he believe that the trial courts and the appellate courts up to the Supreme Court of the United States were all wrong in the matter of Alger Hiss?

In this same speech, this learned individual says, apparently referring to Whittaker Chambers, that he is a "confessed traitor squatting snugly behind the statute of limitations." This is a lie. In 1939, when the statute of limitations did not apply, Whittaker Chambers, in the presence of a witness, Isaac Don Levine, told the entire story of his own treachery and that of Alger Hiss to A. A. Berle Jr., then assistant secretary of state, with the object of bringing it to the attention of the President.

William Thew, one of the pioneers of Claridon Township, was born in Lincolnshire, England, April 1, 1791. With a number of other English families he came to Claridon in 1823. The Thew homestead was a haven for the helpless and needy and at times their home seemed more like a hospital than a private farmer's dwelling. Mr. Thew died in 1883 at the age of 93.

Congress Quiz

Q—My so nearly froze fighting in Korea last winter because he lacked warm clothing. Is the army going to let the same thing happen again?

A—Defense Department chiefs have assured the Senate preparedness subcommittee that ample stocks of cold weather clothing will be available for servicemen in Korea if fighting continues into winter. Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D) Texas, announcing this Oct. 31, said, however, that temporary shortages might arise in forward areas due to transportation difficulties.

* * *

Q—I know Congress spent a lot of time in 1951 on the Defense Production Act. How does this affect me?

A—As the basic law for economic controls, which Congres this year extended until next June 30, that act lets the government control the prices of the things you buy, your wages, your rent and how long you can take to pay for installment purchases. These controls are intended to hold down inflation. The law also results in fewer civilian goods, new homes and schools because it lets the government channel scarce raw materials into war production.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Bird That Came to Dinner

We had trouble making out the strange visitor yesterday, but finally found it to be the Ghost of the Thanksgiving Turkey. It had been enjoying a dream and insisted upon relating all the details.

"Did I have a wonderful Thanksgiving!" the bird exclaimed. "Boy, did I make him suffer!"

"Who?" we asked.

"The old man," the bird replied. "They brought him to me and said I would have to carve. . . . You should have seen me! . . . I hooked and jabbed him all over the place. . . . The carving knife was sharp, but I handled it like an oar, and what fun!"

PHILLIPS

"You might have made a clean job," we suggested.

"Not a chance! . . . I butchered the guy! . . . Kept sticking the fork in the wrong place and shoving him all over the platter. . . . Wrong grip and all that! . . . Old-Rip-and-Tear-'Em, that's me."

* * *

"Did you have to be so crude?"

"It was a pleasure. . . . You should have seen me working on his second joint! . . . Baby, I gave him the works in that area! . . . Never thought I could twist and pry so well. . . . My wrenching form was perfect, too."

"Couldn't you carve properly?"

"Why should I? . . . Here was my chance to get even. . . . Retribution! . . . Revenge. . . . I couldn't have messed him up more if I had been using a jimmy. Best fun came when I got him off the platter."

"Off the platter?"

"Yeah. Had him off table and onto seat of chair in short order. . . . He tried to get away and fell onto the floor but I got him back after a brief battle. . . . Had a lot of fun with his drumstick. . . . You know those directions about 'anchoring thigh with knife and pressing leg down firmly until joint snaps'? . . . How I gummed up that routine! . . . Then there were the instructions on cutting the wing. . . . 'Stick fork in meaty part of wing and start cutting at angle about an inch above spot where wing joins body. . . . When you hit joint, run knife through cartilage.' . . . Ignored every word and just performed like a bulldozer."

"Couldn't you have shown a little form?" we asked.

"No use slicing when you can hack . . . What's form when you can win the hard way. The cheering was great."

"What cheering?" we asked.

"From the cheering section occupied by the Ghosts of all Thanksgiving Turkeys," the bird replied. "It was packed. . . . Cheer leaders, megaphones, songs, somersaults and everything. You should have heard the cries of 'Butcher the bum!' . . . 'Massacre him, big boy!' . . . 'Give him the dull side of the knife again!' . . . and 'Remember what he and his kind did to us!'"

"How did things wind up?"

"Turned the tables on him completely. . . . Won every round. Justice is justice!" said the bird, whose dream had obviously been most realistic and highly satisfactory.

News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO—It was Monday, Nov. 24, 1941.

British forces smashing westward along the Libyan Mediterranean coast captured the important Axis supply center of Gambut, approximately half-way to the besieged British garrison at Tobruk, the British Middle East command announced.

Fourteen men, pinned down by tons of rock, were trapped five miles inside the Stewart mine of the Rail & River Coal Co. at Bellaire, O., for a half hour. Eleven were hurt, four seriously.

First of the 1941 Christmas seals were delivered to homes in Marion city and county as the Marion County Anti-Tuberculosis League began its annual drive for funds to continue its fight against tuberculosis in Marion County.

William R. Lingrel, 45, of near Prospect, an Erie Railroad fireman, died in City Hospital, shortly after he was operated on for removal of gallstones.

A 17-year-old Bucyrus High School senior, Fred Keller, stared death in the face when his plane went into a spin while he was cruising over the Crawford County fairgrounds—but when the plane crashed he crawled from the wreckage none the worse for the terrifying experience except a sprained shoulder and bruises. The plane went into a dive when the fire extinguisher caught in the rudder cable as he banked the plane for a turn.

In Memory

★Of Edward Carl Thomas, who died one year ago, November 25.

One year has passed since that day
The one we loved was called away;
God called him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still,
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought his death so near.
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "Come,"
And with farewell unspoken,
He gently entered home.

Loving wife, Virginia and son, Stephen.

'Dead Woman' Resolves On New Life

Attempting To Take Own Life Foolish, She Says on Recovery

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24—(AP)—The woman sent to the morgue as dead 16 days ago leaves the hospital today for a new life she is anticipating with happiness and humility.

She remembers nothing from the time she lost consciousness from an overdose of 50 sleeping pills November 7 to when she began seeing geometric patterns and opened her eyes seven days later in a hospital.

But she knows she wants to live and to finish a book she had begun writing. She says spiritedly that attempting to take her own life was "a stupid, silly thing to do."

Reporters listened intently yesterday as the woman who doesn't look her 60 years, told her story.

Did Foolish Thing

"I must be known only as T. K. Butler. After that you may say Mrs. Butler. My New England kin are conservative and old fashioned. I did a silly foolish thing. It's not sensible to burden them."

So the reporters agreed to call her that. The initials represent her true first and middle names. But she is going away to where she is little known and start life anew with a relative she will not name.

The death of her husband, the superintendent of a San Jose hospital, in January, 1951, led to what Mrs. Butler calls her first real error.

She dropped her numerous activities, Girl Scout work, and such.

"I am afraid I selfishly forgot the thousands of women who have faced the same problem," she said.

She decided on "a happy ending," although she wasn't really depressed.

Had "Grand Time"

November 7, she ate a good dinner, "including two cups of coffee and my favorite ice cream—oh, I had a grand time."

Then she returned to her San Francisco apartment, gulped the sleeping tablets, intending to bow her head face down in a filled bathtub. But she lost consciousness face up in the tub.

A physician pronounced her dead. A morgue driver heard a gasp and saw her jaw twitch as he prepared to move her cold body to a slab. Oxygen and drugs were administered and the amazing recovery began.

But it wasn't a resurrection, Mrs. Butler says. "Obviously, since I'm here, I never was dead."

Motorist Fined After Auto Kills Hog

John W. Jones, 29, of Coshocton was arrested by state highway patrolmen Friday after he struck and killed a hog on Route 23 in Wyandot County, about 2½ miles north of the Marion County line.

Dale F. Culver, 34, of near Morral was driving hogs across the road into a field at 3:50 p.m. when one of them was hit by the Jones car. The southbound car, out of control, then struck Culver's car, which was parked at the side of the road, and ran into a gate on Culver's farm. Slight damage to the vehicles and gate was reported.

Jones pleaded not guilty to a charge of reckless driving but was found guilty by L. C. Schoenberger, justice of the peace in Upper Sandusky, and was fined $20 and costs.

A tractor and semi-trailer driven by Albert Harrison, 19, of Bettsville jackknifed on Route 23 at 1:45 p. m. Friday when Harrison applied his brakes to avoid hitting a car which was pulling out of a roadside market about a mile north of Marion. The semi-trailer struck the right rear corner of the cab, causing minor damage.

Two arrests Friday were also reported by the patrol.

Floyd E. Hossack, 28, of Detroit, a Greyhound bus driver, was arrested on a charge of speeding on Route 23 at 9:50 p. m.

Pleads Not Guilty To Leaving Accident Scene

Donald Ray Millisor, 38, of 375 Milburn Ave. pleaded not guilty Friday afternoon in Municipal Court to leaving the scene of an accident. He posted $100 bond and had a hearing set for Nov. 30.

He is charged with leaving after his car struck a taxicab driven by Warren Seymore Thomas, 56, of 805 Bellefontaine Ave. at the C&O crossing on W. Center St. at 10:55 p.m. Thursday. Charges are being filed by Joseph Yannitell of 791 Waples Ave. who owns the cab.

He was cited to appear Nov. 28 in Marion Municipal Court.

Dittler G. Bridges, 25, of Columbus was charged with speeding on Route 23 at 8:10 p. m. and was fined $10 and costs when he entered a plea of guilty before Mr. Schoenberger.

West Coast Druggist reports that in 1950 the people of the United States used up 15,670,944,200 aspirin tablets, and in addition, spent $85,000,000 on other headache preparations.

Auto Workers' Pay To Go Up

DETROIT, Nov. 24 —(AP)— The wages of more than one million auto workers go up a penny an hour after Dec. 1.

The one-cent an hour boost goes to the workers under the UAW's "escalator" contract clause with the auto companies. It provides for pay increases if the cost of living, as measured by the price index, goes up.

The bureau of labor statistics, which computes the index, announced yesterday that it had risen an even two points to an all-time high of 187.8 for the three month period ended Oct. 15.

Under the "escalator," hourly wages are to rise one cent for every 1.14 per cent increase in the index.

Northern Hemisphere residents think of the aurora as the "northern lights," or aurora borealis. There is also an aurora australis, or "southern lights."

Today's Fashion Flash

NEW YORK

LADIES WHO want to save money but are willing to spend time on their evening dressing should try the new "coif cap."

The invention — dreamed up by Italy's top-name designer, Madame Fontana — is a cross between a cap and a coiffure.

It's made of lacquer, sequins, a woman's own hair and a little patience.

Madame Fontana discovered the "cap" in a fit of frivolity before a New York social event, when she found she had no evening hat that did justice to her white and emerald green ball gown. As she put lacquer on her upswept hair-do, she was seized with an inspiration—and she seized a handful of emerald green sequins from her dressmaker's box almost simultaneously.

She patted the sequins into the lacquer. They stuck. Fontana had a glistening cap of glitter.

She announced today that she will develop the idea for practical novelty headgear in her spring collection.

Meanwhile, anyone with the desire and the requisites has her blessing to try it.

ATTEND DAYTON MEETING

Attending from Marion were Mrs. Bertha Shepherd, Mrs. Dema Niedenfuhr, Mrs. Evelyn Kimberling, Mrs. Delsia Baker, Mrs. Dorothy Briner and Mrs. Lou Brown.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

THE underworld's high court held special sessions here the other day. Its verdict was to dam its torpedoes; this is not the time to go full speed ahead.

As the controlling elements of the nation's big mobs deliberated they heard from their colleagues in crime that their huge, respectable investments are being threatened by too much "bad publicity." Too many gangsters are getting their pictures in the papers in too many ridiculous poses.

Victor Riesel

The mob chiefs decided that their public relations needs revamping; that its goons are not to carry so many guns; that some of their loud-mouthed, flashy hoods, and lesser leaders who talk too much or get a bad press are to be hustled abroad, exiled further west, or just dumped.

The crime syndicate's own "court of appeals" decided to operate in less sensational fashion. They feel the "situation" is out of hand.

There is the vision of Tony Anastasio, small-time Brooklyn operator, brother of Al Anastasia, who for years leased the killer "contracts" for Murder, Inc. Tony actually got himself televised directing traffic on the waterfront during the recent New York rebel strike on the wharves.

* * *

THERE IS THE NOISE coming out of Chicago, where small-time hoods have been trying to dynamite their way into the Teamsters' (Milk Wagon Drivers' Union) — exploding home-made bombs outside the windows of women and kids.

There is the arrest of several killers by the Detroit police—Taxi Joe Bommarito and Charles Cassise of the Perrone band, who are charged with knifing and slugging Walter Reuther's lads. At the latest count, the Detroit gendarmerie have gathered up 10 hoods from this crowd and are looking for more.

There is the visit of Joe Curran, CIO sailors' leader and Paul Hall, chief of the AFL seafaring men, to Washington where they testified and got the Senate committee to adopt their suggestion that the Narcotics Bureau report to the unions all convictions of seamen and longshoremen in an effort to choke off dope smuggling.

* * *

ALL THIS CAN HURT the multi-million dollar investments in narcotics, gambling, hotels, real estate, night clubs and laundries which are giving the syndicates a very good and "respectable living."

This is not the swaggering day of Kid Twist (Abe) Reles and the suave Bugsy Siegal. The high court "judges" realized that the "Guys who got into trouble were those who got too big," and into the papers. Too much publicity, like being in Macy's window, "was the way the boys put it. The time had come to forget tradition.

When the Kefauver committee threw the heat on TV lights on the mobs, they started to sweat. But when local crime committees followed up, the mobs began to act. When, on the New York waterfront, Tony Anastasio began moving in on additional piers, the big boys tapped him on the shoulder and said stay where you are. Now, you must understand that this meant that Tony's protector, big brother Al, expert in execution by several very intricate styles, no longer rated. Otherwise junior would not have been tapped. Soon there came evidence of the downfall of Al.

* * *

POLICE ENFORCEMENT agencies got word that Al was to be killed in the same restaurant with Willie Moretti. Instead of going the way of all crime syndicate flesh, Don Alberto, was tipped off by some loyal friends. Al rushed himself to a hospital for X-rays—to see if his manicured finger nails were sprained no doubt. Instead of sipping coffee with Willie when the lead flew, Al was being hit with harmless cathode rays.

Once again the mob tried. But at the second execution spot, some friends pushed Anastasia out one door at a Newark gathering, as the gunmen walked in another.

The high court met again. It didn't want another mess on its hands—too much publicity after the Moretti thing. Decision was either to get him out of the neighborhood or the country. But rushing him to Italy or Southern France was complicated. And illegal. Furthermore, he could never get back in to his family. So it was decided to get him west to Hot Springs.

This would shift the most notorious of the old-time mob right out of the spotlight. With Joe Doto (Adonis) in jail, Anatasia in exile and Willie in Valhalla, the "respectable" elements could go on with their "legitimate" businesses which bring in hundreds of millions a year—without violence.

The criminals' "court of appeals" decided the time had come for a fundamental change in tactics. Too many investigations were peering behind their lead curtain. Too many of their crooks were spoiling the broth. It was time for the old-fashioned, over-publicized crime czars to go.

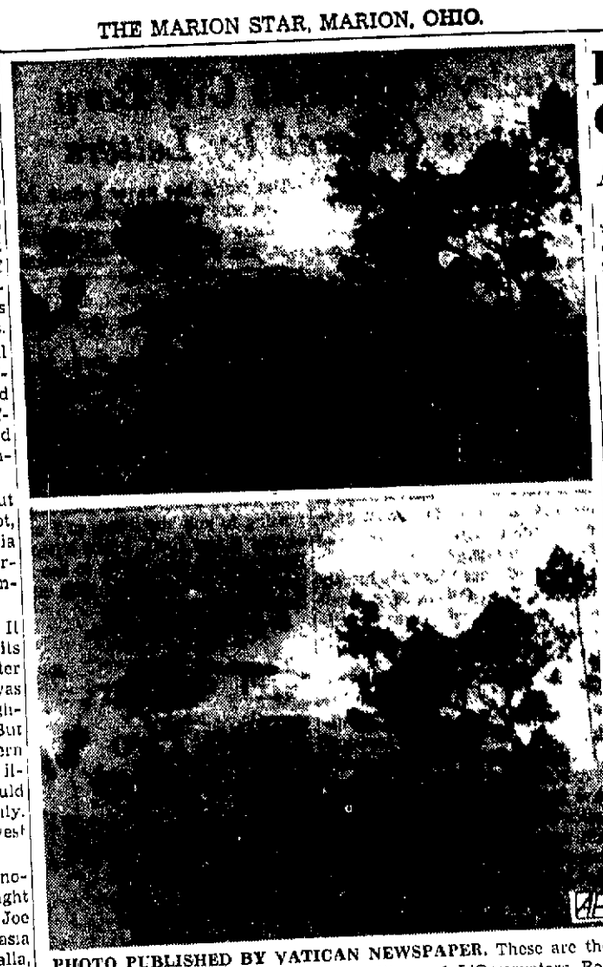

PHOTO PUBLISHED BY VATICAN NEWSPAPER. These are the two pictures published in a recent edition of L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper showing what the paper described as the "revolving sun" phenomena at Fatima, Portugal, in 1917. The newspaper, which described the photographs as of "rigorously authentic origin," said the pictures showed "both the black mark in the sun, produced by its very rapid rotation, and the position of the sun itself, almost on the horizon, a position entirely impossible in the hour in which the photographs were taken, that is precisely at 12:30." According to Roman Catholic records, crowds at Cova di Iria, Portugal, near the Fatima shrine, witnessed the "revolving sun" miracle Oct. 13, 1917, and some equipped with cameras "succeeded in fixing the exceptional scene." Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, speaking last Oct. 13 during services at Fatima closing the 1951 extension of the 1950 Holy Year, indicated that Pope Pius XII had seen "this same miracle" in October and November, 1950.

Future Plans Outlined To Air Reservists

Future plans for Air Force reservists were discussed Wednesday night at a meeting of the 9518th Volunteer Air Reserve Unit comprising city and county servicemen.

Speaker was Col. William D. Walter, commanding officer of the 9104th Group with headquarters in Columbus. Accompanying Col. Walter were Lt. Robert J. Yates, group liaison officer and T/Sgt. James W. Dewitz, squadron liaison airman.

Col. Walter indicated that in the future there is the possibility of pay for regular unit meetings and perhaps flying time. He reported, however, that nothing definite has been approved to date.

Promotion requirements were outlined. It was pointed out that the basic requirement before promotion is a minimum year's service in the Volunteer Air Reserve. A question and answer session followed the talk.

Col. Walter announced that a new commanding officer for the Marion squadron to succeed Maj. Howard M. Hinderleider will be named at the next meeting of the local unit. Maj. Hinderleider has been transferred to Detroit in his civilian job. No other changes in the squadron's staff are to be made, it was announced.

Meetings held at the Veterans Memorial Home, are open to all Air Force reservists, squadron officers reported.

Little Man Caught

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

SMALL business is crying "help" again.

The plight of the small businessman has aroused much sympathy. But the small businessmen themselves would like less sympathy and more orders.

One of their spokesmen is Herbert Barchoff, 36-year-old vice president of the Eastern Brass and copper Co., a metals warehouse and processing firm.

Hal Boyle

"The small businessman today is bewildered by restrictions on the metals — brass, copper, aluminum and steel," he said.

"He can't get enough material to continue full manufacture of consumer goods. He can get material to work on defense contracts—but he isn't getting those defense contracts fast enough to stay in business."

* * *

BARCHOFF SAID there are "thousands and thousands" of small firms faced with suspension of operations.

"It is an odd thing to say," he remarked, "but they are being hurt more by a percentage war than in an all-out war. In an all-out war the government needs things in a hurry, and the contracts filter down quickly to their level.

"There were a lot of casualties in the last war. Some of those who survived then, say they are having even tougher going now.

"They're drowning. Any number won't be able to survive until the third quarter of 1952, when the government hopes to release additional quantities of aluminum and steel for civilian use."

Barchoff held a pioneering "shirtsleeve conference" at his own plant last summer to attack the problem. He brought together government officials, presentatives of big business, and hundreds of small businessmen. Similar regional shirtsleeve conferences are planned throughout the country.

"But we need to get together a basic organization to filter down contracts to small business firms faster," he said. "That will still salvage some."

* * *

MAJOR GOVERNMENT agencies dispensing defense contracts now have units to deal with small business. But Barchoff feels they should be consolidated into one outfit.

"Then the small businessman could go to a single place instead of being pushed from pillar to post," he said. "The average small businessman is discouraged by red tape. He gives it up as hopeless. He can't offord to go to Washington and fight for a contract. He simply goes out of business."

Another possible solution, Barchoff feels, is regional pools of small businessmen organized to handle major contracts.

"But the main trouble up until now is there simply hasn't been enough government ordering.

Pointing out that a great percentage of contracts had been concentrated in a relatively few big firms, he added:

"There is no real clash between big business and small business. They need each other.

"But many big concerns today —in order to take up the slack resulting from cuts in their own civilian production—are doing themselves the work they used to send out to small subcontractors. Government officials also have been slow to allocate contracts, hoping to get later technological benefits.

"But the result is the same—the small businessman is going under. And our whole economy can be upset if we lose small business."

Printing Done by Pres. Wilson Ancestor Is Shown at Princeton

STEUBENVILLE, Nov 24—The printing craftsmanship of James Wilson, paternal grandfather of former President Woodrow Wilson, examples of work done on his press at the pioneer Steubenville Western Herald, are on exhibition at Princeton University.

Nine books and fifteen pamphlets comprise a rare and valuable collection owned by William H. Vodrey Jr., East Liverpool attorney, and these Mr. Vodrey has sent to his alma mater for exhibit at the university's new Firestone library.

Before Woodrow Wilson went to the White House he served as president of Princeton and for this reason the Vodrey collection has special significance in the "collector's choice" showing.

James Wilson bought Steubenville's first little newspaper, the Western Herald, in 1815, nine years after its founding in 1806. He had come to America from Ireland in 1808, worked in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New Lisbon in Ohio. While editor of the Western Herald he was elected to the Ohio legislature and served three terms from 1818 to 1822.

His career in Steubenville included presidency of the Steubenville, Cadiz & Cambridge Turnpike Co. and a term on the Common Pleas bench as an associate judge. He sold the Western Star to his son Robert in 1838 and a few years later the paper was sold to others.

A son, Joseph Ruggles Wilson, was born to James and Ann Wilson in Steubenville in 1822. As a boy, Joseph Ruggles Wilson worked at the printshop and attended Steubenville schools. After graduation at Mercer academy and at the male seminary in Steubenville, he married Janet Woodrow, a student at the adjacent Steubenville female academy in 1849. He became a Presbyterian minister and moved to pastorates in the south. At Staunton, Va. their son, Woodrow Wilson, was born Dec. 28, 1856, destined to reach the Presidency 57 years later.
